July 6, 1983—50 years to the very date—the Golden Anniversary All-Star Game will be played at Comiskey Park, the site for the first "dream game" ever played. That first All-Star Game, billed as a gathering of the finest talent and brightest stars ever to don baseball uniforms, was played July 6, 1933 as part of the Century of Progress that ran all that summer on Chicago's lake front.

The game was the brainchild of the then sports editor of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Arch Ward, and was an instant success. Official attendance at the first game was 47,595, and since then, millions of baseball fans have witnessed what has become the traditional breather at the midway point in each season's pennant races.

All of the living members of the original All-Star teams will be present this summer for the 50th anniversary edition of the mid-summer classic, along with many stars from subsequent All-Star Games.

Inquiries concerning media coverage of this summer's celebration should be directed to the Public Relations Department of the Chicago White Sox.

JERRY M. REINSDORF

POSITION: Chairman, Board of Directors

AGE: 47

BORN: Brooklyn, NY 2/25/36

RESIDENCE: Highland Park, IL

FAMILY: Married (Martyl), four children (David, b 3/25/62; Susan, b 1/4/65; Michael, b 3/10/67; Jonathan, b 12/17/69).

Jerry Reinsdorf has been at the helm of the Chicago White Sox just two seasons, but in that limited time has quietly become extremely active in the affairs of baseball. Recently elected to the Executive Council of Baseball, the body that provides leadership and direction to baseball as a whole, Reinsdorf is also a member of the committee of baseball executives studying the streamlining of Baseball's governing structure. He and partner Eddie Einhorn have - at the same time - continued to moved aggressively to build a championship team in Chicago. Reinsdorf, in addition to his White Sox responsibilities, is chief executive officer of Balcor/American Express, Inc., one of the nation's largest real estate syndicators, with aggregate real estate investments well in excess of one billion dollars. Reinsdorf is a graduate of Northwestern University School of Law and is a Certified Public Accountant, as well as an attorney.

EDWARD M. (EDDIE) EINHORN

POSITION: President

AGE: 47

BORN: Paterson, N.J. 1/3/36

RESIDENCE: Chicago, IL

FAMILY: Married (Ann); two children (Jennifer, b 1/2/72; Jeffrey, b 9/26/74).

A "dynamo of boiling energy" might be the best way to describe Eddie Einhorn, the other half of the Sox' ownership duo. Simultaneously, Einhorn has: played key roles in major player acquisitions, including the signing of prize free agent pitcher Floyd Bannister...has assembled an aggressive marketing department that will undoubtedly serve as a model for other sports franchises...has founded SportsVision, the only television station in the country controlled by sports franchises...is a member of Baseball's Television Negotiating Committee...and is serving a leadership role in efforts to establish a nationwide network of club-owned or controlled television systems to improve teams' financial posture. Prior to purchasing the White Sox with Jerry Reinsdorf and the other members of the ownership group, Eddie was an executive producer with CBS Sports. In 1961, he founded the TVS Television Network which he later sold to Dun and Bradstreet. Einhorn earned his degree from Northwestern University School of Law, where he was a classmate of Reinsdorf, and his undergraduate degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

ROLAND A. HEMOND

POSITION:	Executive Vice President/General Manager
AGE:	53
BORN:	Central Falls, RI 10/26/29
RESIDENCE:	Chicago, IL
FAMILY:	Five children (Susan, b 1/3/60; Tere, b 12/27/61; Robert b 4/20/64; Jay, b 12/11/65; Ryan, b 12/11/72)

Rated an exceptional judge of talent and an excellent trader, Roland Hemond has also quickly established a reputation for his ability to deal with players and agents and the complicated contracts that have become commonplace in recent years. Hemond joined the White Sox as director of player development in 1970, and gained wide respect for an ability to assemble competitive White Sox teams during a time when the Sox were unable to compete financially. Roland was named a vice president in July 1973, then awarded his present title when the new ownership assumed control of the White Sox in January of 1981. Roland was the first baseball executive to tap Chuck Tanner for a major league manager's job (1970); he responded by leading the Sox to a 3rd place finish in 1971 and a 2nd place finish in 1972. Roland served in the United States Coast Guard from 1947 through 1950, then launched his front office career in 1951, sweeping out concession stands for the Hartford CT., club in the Eastern League.

HOWARD C. PIZER

POSITION:	Executive Vice President
AGE:	41
BORN:	Chicago, IL 10/23/41
RESIDENCE:	Wilmette, IL
FAMILY:	Married (Sheila), Two daughters (Jacqueline, b 4/5/68; and Rachel b 4/28/71)

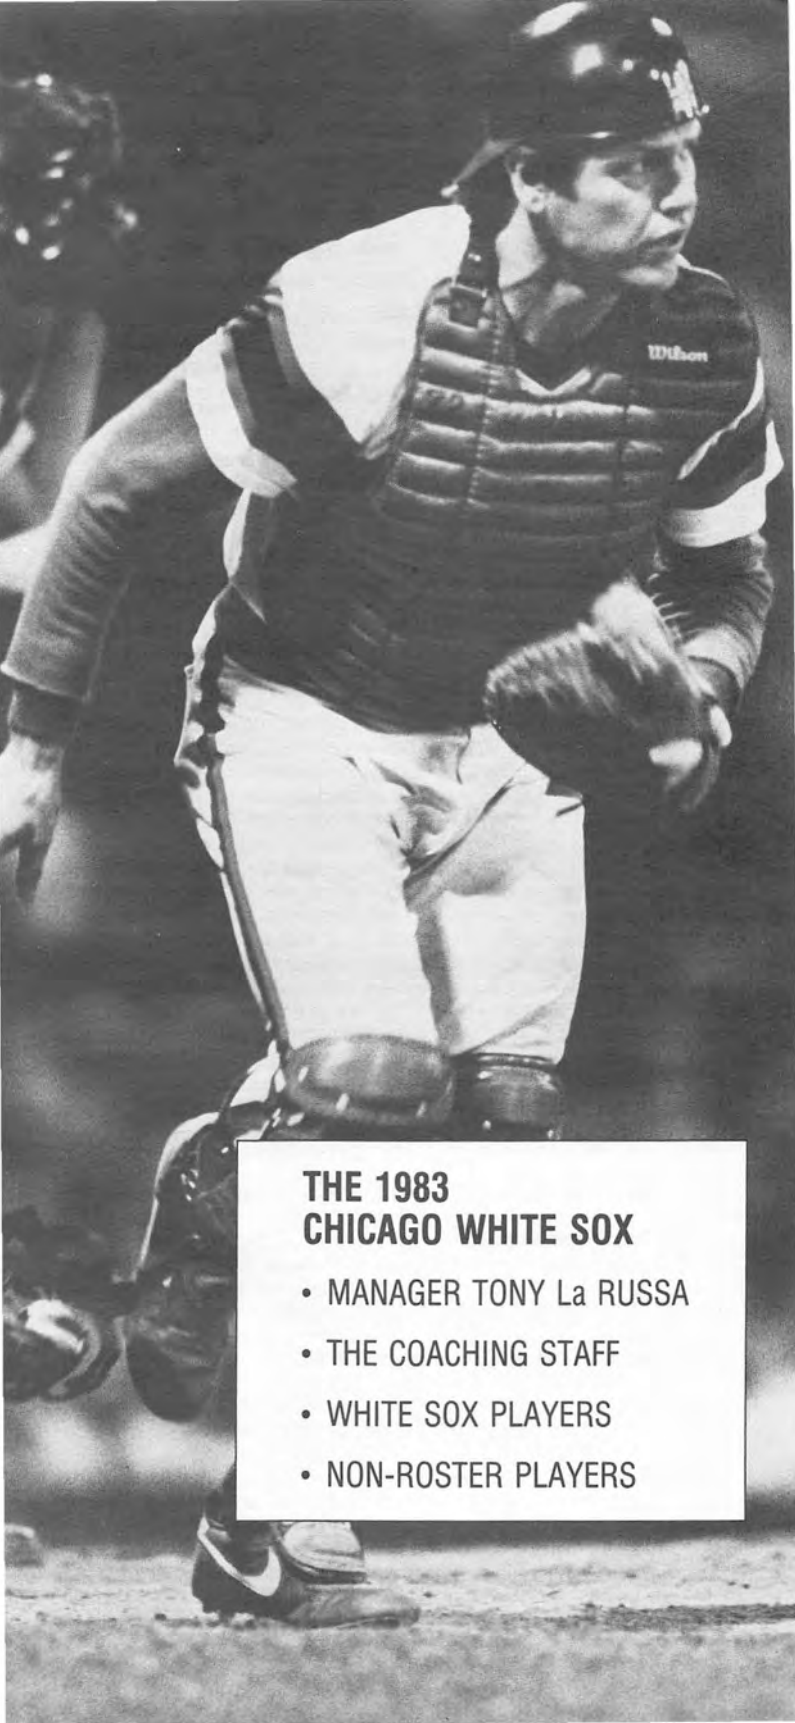
Born and reared on Chicago's Southside, a career in baseball was the farthest thing from Howard Pizer's mind as a young man. In fact, his first "official" brush with major league baseball did not come until the winter of 1980-'81 when Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn won approval to purchase the White Sox. Until then, Pizer had carved out a successful legal career in real estate syndication, and had no reason to suspect any detours were in the offing. After obtaining a degree in accounting from the University of Wisconsin, he graduated Magna Cum Laude from Northwestern University's School of Law, and was a practicing corporate and securities attorney until 1975 when he joined The Balcor Company, subsequently becoming its executive vice president and general counsel. By then, he was a recognized expert in the field of real estate syndication. After the Reinsdorf-Einhorn group obtained approval to purchase the White Sox January 29, 1981, Pizer was tapped to handle the transition of the team to its new ownership, then was named to his present position in March of '81.



THE 1983 CHICAGO WHITE SOX

- MANAGER TONY La RUSSA
- THE COACHING STAFF
- WHITE SOX PLAYERS
- NON-ROSTER PLAYERS

ANTHONY (TONY) La RUSSA JR. #10

POSITION:	Manager (Shortstop as a player)
AGE:	38, turns 39 Oct. 4
BORN:	Tampa, FL 10/4/44
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-1, 185
BATTED/THREW	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Sarasota, FL
FAMILY:	Married (Elaine), 2 daughters (Bianca Tai, b 9/14/79, and Devon Kai, b 8/17/82)
BECAME MANAGER:	August 2, 1979, succeeding Don Kessinger

1982 SEASON - "We had a good team in 1982. Not a great team, but good." So said White Sox Manager Tony La Russa in analyzing the performance of his team last season. "I believe the ingredients are present for a winning club. All we have to do is keep the nucleus of this club together, and a lot of things can happen in 1983." The Sox owned an 87-75 record in 1982, finishing 3rd in the American League West, 6 games out of first place. For the Sox, it was their best finish in 5 seasons (in 1977, they were 90-72, ending-up 3rd in the A.L. West, 12 games out), and their second best finish in the last 11 seasons (in 1972, the Sox were 87-67, winding-up 2nd in the West, 5½ games out of first). But just as interesting as the Sox improved showing in '82, was the dawning of an awareness that Tony La Russa was the point man of a "new generation" of managers. La Russa and Seattle's young skipper, Rene Lachemann - a one time roommate of La Russa's when both were playing in the minor leagues - were both being cited as trend setters in the world of big league managers. Cleveland President Gabe Paul said this past winter "A lot of teams are looking for a new look, a new approach to managing. You have to be a young person, or think like a young person, to understand a ballplayer's mind and his problems." Roy Eisenhardt, President of the Oakland A's, said "La Russa and Lachemann are examples of the type of person I'd like to have as a manager." That thinking by baseball executives was brought home last July, when rumors were rampant in the media that La Russa's job was in jeopardy. No less than 5 major league teams requested permission to talk with the Sox' young manager. Said CHICAGO TRIBUNE columnist Steve Daley, "If you take a hard look at the fellows being hired as managers these days, you realize that the White Sox skipper cuts a mighty popular figure on the road."

MANAGING CAREER - La Russa is the 2nd youngest manager in the American League (he is exactly 7 months younger than Lachemann), but owns the 2nd longest tenure of any manager in the American League (Detroit's Sparky Anderson was appointed manager of the Tigers June 14, 1979 - 49 days before La Russa's call to the major league managing ranks). Interestingly, La Russa's head-to-head record with 5 managers who are considered the deans of the American League is well above .500. In head-to-head confrontations with Billy Martin, Earl Weaver, Gene Mauch, Ralph Houk, and Anderson, the La Russa-managed White Sox own an 88-79 record, a 5.27 won-loss percentage. Against Martin at New York and Oakland, the Sox are 24-18 (.571) since Tony took over the Sox Aug. 2, 1979; vs. Houk at Boston the Sox are 12-9 (.571); vs. Weaver at Baltimore they were 20-18 (.526); vs. Mauch at Minnesota and California, the Sox were 18-18 (.500); vs Anderson at Detroit, the Sox are 14-16 (.467). In 5 seasons in the White Sox organization at both the minor and major league levels, La Russa owns a combined won-loss record of 345 wins vs. 320 losses, a winning percentage of .519. In 3 full seasons at the helm of the White Sox, he has improved the club by a total of 32 games, going from a

70-90 record in 1980, his first full season, to an 87-75 record last season, 12 games over .500.

PLAYING CAREER - La Russa signed his first professional playing contract with the Kansas City (later Oakland) A's, the night he graduated from Jefferson High School (Tampa, FL.) after a stellar prep athletic career. He made his major league debut with the A's in 1963 (34 games), and later spent time in the big leagues with the Atlanta Braves and Chicago Cubs. Tony played 16 years, 6 of them in the major leagues, closing out his playing career in 1977 with New Orleans of the American Association.

MISCELLANEOUS - La Russa is a licensed attorney in the State of Florida, and associated with the law firm of Thorp, Reed, Conley, and Dooley in Sarasota, FL., where he practices in the off-season, as time permits. He received his law degree from Florida State University Law School, and passed the Florida bar the winter of 1979-'80. He is the only lawyer-manager in the major leagues at the moment, and only the 3rd in the history of baseball. The other two, Monte Ward (who managed the New York Giants and Brooklyn in the late 1880's) and Hughie Jennings (who managed Detroit from 1907 to 1920) are both in the Baseball Hall of Fame. La Russa earned his undergraduate degree in industrial management from the University of South Florida. A native of Tampa, FL., where his parents, Anthony Sr. and Olivia, still reside, Tony is fluent in Spanish.

EDWIN ALBERT (ED) BRINKMAN #35

POSITION: Coach (Shortstop as a player)
AGE: 41
BORN: Cincinnati, OH 12/8/41
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-0, 175
BATTED/THREW: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Cincinnati, OH
FAMILY: Married (Donna), 2 daughters (Kimberly, b 8/31/67, and Shari, b 1/10/70)
BECAME COACH: Nov. 1, 1982

When the naming of Ed Brinkman as a White Sox coach completed the Sox staff for the 1983 season, one veteran baseball observer commented, "The White Sox now have the best coaching staff in the major leagues." "We think he can teach the mechanics of fielding," said Manager Tony La Russa. "His fielding records speak for themselves; during his playing career he always had great instincts as a shotstop." Brinkman spend 15 years in the major leagues with Washington, Detroit, St. Louis, Texas, and the Yankees, gaining a reputation as one of the smoothest fielding shortstops of his day. With the Tigers, he established 5 major league fielding records in one season (1972), and earned a Gold Glove for his efforts. He served as a manager in the Detroit minor league system from 1977 through last season, with the exception of 1981 when he was a member of the San Diego Padres coaching staff. Ed is the brother of former White Sox and Pittsburgh catcher Chuck Brinkman.

DAVID EDWIN (DAVE) DUNCAN #18

POSITION:	Coach (Catcher as a player)
AGE:	37, turns 38 Sept. 26
BORN:	Dallas, TX 9/26/45
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-2, 190
BATTED/THREW:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Tucson, AZ
FAMILY:	Married (Jeanine), 4 children (Tiffany, b 6/4/67; Deavannie, b 7/2/69; David, b 9/29/79; Christopher, b 5/5/81).
BECAME COACH:	November 1, 1982

"There were probably 50 telephone calls concerning our pitching coach position," said Manager Tony La Russa. "And, half of them were to recommend Dave Duncan. His name was mentioned repeatedly by people I have come to know and respect." The Sox skipper also had some first hand knowledge of Duncan's work: "During the seasons we faced Duncan-coached pitching staffs, his pitchers always seemed to have a good grasp of the physical and mental aspects that make up successful pitchers," La Russa said. Indeed, in 1982 Duncan's Seattle pitching staff led the American League in strike outs (1,002), while the Mariners' 3.88 ERA was 4th best in the A.L. He broke into the majors with the A's in 1964, playing nearly 5 seasons for them before 2 seasons at Cleveland and 2 more at Baltimore. He joined Cleveland's coaching staff in 1978, and was there 4 seasons, 2 as pitching coach, before moving to Seattle as pitching coach for the 1982 season.

CHARLES RICHARD (CHARLEY) LAU #6

POSITION:	Coach (Catcher as a player)
AGE:	49, turns 50 April 12
BORN:	Romulus, MI 4/12/33
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-0, 200
BATTED/THREW:	Left/Right
RESIDENCE:	Key Colony Beach, FL
FAMILY:	Married (Evelyn)
BECAME COACH:	Nov. 11, 1981

Some outstanding major league players have become legends while still in spikes, and a few managers have become legendary while still actively directing campaigns from the top steps of dugouts, but never has a coach become a living legend - until Charley Lau. Charley is simply the best batting coach in baseball today, and that's a judgement rendered not by management people, but by his pupils themselves: White Sox batters. Almost the first words out of a Sox hitter's mouth after a big game last season were, "Charley has been working with me..." No higher compliment could a coach receive from his pupils. Lau joined the White Sox staff in November of 1981, signing a 6-year contract, thought to be the longest contract ever negotiated for a coach. Prior to joining the Sox, Charley was batting coach with the New York Yankees 3 seasons (1979-'81) and batting coach with the Kansas City Royals 8 years (1971-'78). In 14 seasons as a major league batting coach, Lau's teams have taken part in 2 World Series, won 2 American League pennants, 6 division titles, and finished 2nd 4 other times. Lau launched his coaching career with Baltimore in 1969 after an 11-year major league playing career.

JAMES RICHARD (JIM) LEYLAND #28

POSITION:	Coach (Catcher as a player)
AGE:	38
BORN:	Toledo, OH 12/15/44
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	5-11, 175
BATTED/THREW:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Perrysburg, OH
FAMILY:	Single
BECAME COACH:	Oct. 12, 1981

When Jim Leyland was named third base coach of the White Sox a year ago, Manager Tony La Russa predicted he wouldn't be a big league coach for very long before moving up to the major league managerial ranks. "I hope we have him for more than one season," La Russa said at the time. Tony's fears were almost realized this past winter when two different major league teams discussed managerial possibilities with Jim. And it makes sense. Leyland was a very successful manager in the Detroit organization before joining the Sox in October of 1981; in 11 seasons managing in the Tigers' system, Leyland-led clubs gained their respective league play-offs 6 times, winning 3 league championships in 5 seasons. Jim was named "Manager-of-the-Year" 3 different times along the way. He is one of 3 former catchers on the Sox' 5-man coaching staff. Jim's brother, Father Thomas Leyland, is a Catholic priest, pastor of Holy Rosary Catholic Church in Toledo, OH.

The White Sox stole 136 bases last season, the 3rd best total in the American League, and the best White Sox team total in 16 years (the Sox swiped 153 bases in 1966). Most of the credit for that showing can be attributed to Dave Nelson. Dave is most visible working in the first base coach's box during Sox games, but his real toil goes on behind the scenes as he works with Sox players on the art of taking good lead-offs and getting the jump on pitchers, as well as running from first to third. Nelson spent 11 years as an infielder in the major leagues with Cleveland, Washington-Texas, and Kansas City before injuries ended his playing career in 1978. He stole 51 bases for the Rangers in 1972, and 43 for them in '73. Nelson put his name in the record books Aug. 30, 1974 when he became only the third player in major league history to swipe second, third, and home in one inning (vs. Cleveland). One of Dave's 3 brothers, Maurice, is a Trappist Monk, Brother Dominic, who lives at the Trappist Monastery in Lafayette, OR. Nelson attended Compton (CA.) Junior College, and California State College.

BORN:	Easton, MD 3/15/59
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-2, 175
BATS/THROWS:	Left/Left

ACQUIRED:	Selected #1 by White Sox in June, 1977 Free Agent Draft

1982 SEASON - In only his 3rd full season in the major leagues, Harold Baines emerged as one of the top offensive threats in the American League to go along with his already established reputation as one of the most feared right fielders in the league. Harold was among the team leaders in every offensive category, and Sept. 23rd became the youngest player in White Sox history to drive-in at least 100 runs when he had 3 RBI's in a game at Seattle. Baines wound-up with 105 RBI's for the season to lead the club, the most by a Sox batter since 1972 when Richie Allen drove-in 113 runs. He also led the Sox with 25 homers, and that total was the most by a White Sox batter since 1977 when Oscar Gamble hit 31 and Richie Zisk hit 30. In addition, Baines' RBI total, coupled with Greg Luzinski's total of 102 RBI's, marked the first time that 2 Sox batters had 100 or more RBI's in the same season since 1936, when Zeke Bonura (138) and Luke Appling (128) accomplished the feat. Harold also finished 2nd on the club in doubles (29), tied for 2nd in triples (8), finished 3rd on the club in runs scored (88) and 4th in walks (49), and was 5th on the club with 10 stolen bases. "HB" had one of the greatest weeks a batter can ever imagine in early July when he hit 5 home runs, including 2 grandslam homers, drove-in 13 runs and hit .500 (11-for-22) in just 6 games. Highlight of that momentous week was July 7th at Comiskey Park when he slammed 3 homers in one game, including an 8th inning grandslam off Elias Sosa, to drive-in 6 runs against Detroit. Needless to say, he was named American League "Player of the Week" for those accomplishments. Harold finished the '82 season with 45 multiple-hit games, including 9 3-hit performances, 2nd best total on the club. On defense, Baines continued to add to his reputation as a tough outfielder to advance on; he was credited with 10 assists, the 2nd year in a row he had that many and 2nd year in a row he led Sox outfielders in that department. Durability? He appeared in 161 of the Sox 162 games last season.

CAREER - Baines ignored the "sophomore jinx" in 1981, improving his batting average 31 points over his rookie season (improving from .255 to .286), tying for 2nd on the Sox with 10 homers, and tying for 2nd in the American League with 7 triples. He hit .354 in the month of August, then drove-in 15 runs in 17 games in September. Harold had 2 4-hit games and 8 3-hit games, along with a total of 25 multiple-hit games. Baines became a regular immediately upon arriving in the major leagues; he appeared in 141 games his rookie season (1980) while hitting 13 homers and driving-in 49 runs. He tied for the club lead with 6 triples. Harold gave a preview of things to come in the middle of the 1980 season when the Sox appeared in the annual "Hall of Fame Game" at Cooperstown, NY. He slammed a 3-run homer, and 2 doubles in 4 at-bats. In his final minor league season (1979), Baines batted .298 with 22 homers and 87 RBI's while leading the Iowa Oaks of the American Association in triples (8), total bases (246), and slugging percentage (.528). He also wrote a line in the league record book by slamming 2 home runs in the same inning (Aug. 4 vs. Oklahoma City).

MISCELLANEOUS - Harold was drafted first by the Sox in 1977, who passed up Paul Molitor and Terry Kennedy to select him, and there was a suspicion at the time that his selection was more sentimental than rational; Harold had been "discovered" by former White Sox President Bill Veeck as a 12-year-old Little Leaguer.

FLOYD FRANKLIN BANNISTER #24

POSITION: Pitcher

AGE: 27, turns 28 June 10

BORN: Pierre, SD 6/10/55

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-1, 195

BATS/THROWS: Left/Left

RESIDENCE: Scottsdale, AZ

FAMILY: Married (Jana), one son (Brian, b 2/28/81)

ACQUIRED: Signed by the White Sox as a free agent Dec. 13, 1982.

1982 SEASON - With the signing of Floyd Bannister last December 13, the White Sox landed one of the most sought-after players in last winter's Re-entry Draft, a hard-throwing left-hander who has not less than 5 different, effective pitches: a fastball he consistently throws 90 miles an hour or faster, a curve ball, a cut fastball, a slider, and a change-up. Floyd was selected by no less than 16 teams. Media reports indicated as many as 4 teams, in addition to the Sox, were among the leaders in bidding for Floyd's services, and at least 2 of those teams, Atlanta and the New York Yankees, reportedly offered contracts considerably higher than the one he ultimately signed with the White Sox. The day he actually signed his contract with the Sox (Dec. 16), Bannister said, "I hope the investment they made in me will pay off in a short period of time...I can best help the Sox by being a leader on the field...to go out every 4 or 5 days and take the ball with authority." As for the 1982 season itself, Bannister led the American League with 209 strike outs, and his 3.43 ERA was the best in the A.L. among left-handed starters, 8th best overall. In addition, he led the Seattle pitching staff in starts (35), shutouts (3), innings (247), and tied for the first in wins (12). Bannister ranked 2nd in the American League in strike-outs-per-9-innings by starters; he averaged 7.6 whiffs per 9 innings, 2nd only to the Yankees' Dave Righetti (8.0). Bannister set 4 personal one-season high water marks last season: wins (12), ERA (3.43), innings pitched (247), and strike outs (209). His favorite foes last year were Oakland and Kansas City; he was 2-0 against both, with an 0.95 ERA vs. the Royals in 28.1 innings.

CAREER - Bannister's ratio of strike-outs-per-9-innings is one of the best among active major league starting pitchers. He ranks 5th in the American League in that department with a career ratio of 6.8 whiffs-per-9-innings (Dave Righetti of the Yankees leads with a 7.8 ratio), and is 11th overall in the majors (Nolan Ryan of Houston leads all active major league hurlers with a 9.5 ratio). In 1981, Floyd posted his first .500 season (9-9) while firing a pair of 2-hitters; he fanned 86 batters in the shortened season to lead Seattle in that department. The 1980 season was a success for Bannister on 2 counts: he pitched more than 200 innings (218), and dropped his ERA under 4.00 for the first time in his big league career (3.47). He was acquired by Seattle December 8, 1978, from the Houston Astros in exchange for shortstop Craig Reynolds, following an off-season that included an illness in spring training and several bouts with blisters. He broke into the majors with Houston in 1977, posting an 8-9 record in his initial season, including 4 straight wins at the close of the season. Bannister spent all of one year in the minor leagues; appearing in a grand total of 7 games, 3 at the A level, 3 at the "AA" level, and one at the "AAA" level, with a combined record of 2-0, with a 1.50 ERA.

MISCELLANEOUS - Floyd was the first player in the nation selected in the June, 1976, Free Agent Draft after a stellar collegiate career at Arizona State University. He was 38-6 with a 1.88 career ERA in 3 seasons at ASU; his senior year, Bannister owned a 19-2 record, a 1.45 ERA, and fanned 123 batters in 186 innings. At 2-time All-American, Floyd was also named THE SPORTING NEWS "College Player of the Year" and college's baseball's "MVP" in 1976. Reared in Seattle, Floyd and Jana are expecting their second child sometime during this spring training.

RICHARD MONROE BARNES #52

POSITION: Pitcher
AGE: 23, turns 24 July 21
BORN: Palm Beach, FL 7/21/59
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-4, 186
BATS/THROWS: Right/Left
RESIDENCE: Lake Worth, FL
FAMILY: Single
ACQUIRED: Selected #2 by White Sox in June, 1977 Free Agent Draft

1982 SEASON - Richard made his major league debut last summer, and although spending most of the season with the Sox' AAA club at Edmonton, Alberta (Can.), he made 2 trips to the White Sox finishing up the season with the Sox. Barnes was called-up to the parent club the first time July 2, after winning 5 of 8 starts for the Trappers. In 2 of his 3 losses during that stretch, his team was shutout behind him while he allowed a total of only 3 earned runs. The highlight of his season at Edmonton came July 9 at Albuquerque, New Mexico, when he defeated the Dukes 4-0 on a 3-hit shutout, while striking out 7; it was the first time in 240 games that the Dodgers' AAA team had been blanked by an opposing pitcher. Richard came close to a victory in his very first major league appearance; July 2, he started against Seattle at Comiskey Park, and had allowed the Mariners just 2 runs on 2 hits through 4.1 innings. He allowed the tying run to score from 3rd with 2 out in the 5th on a balk, only to have the game postponed because of rain a few minutes later, with the score tied 4-4. He had allowed just 5 hits in 5 innings, while Sox batters had raked the Seattle starter, Gene

Nelson, for 10 hits. He posted his first major league save August 3 at Yankee Stadium, pitching 3 shutout innings against the Yankees to preserve a 14-2 White Sox victory.

CAREER - Barnes was the ace of the Edmonton pitching staff in 1981, leading the Sox AAA farm club in 7 different departments including wins (13) and starts (26). As a result of that performance, Richard was named to the Pacific Coast League All-Star Team, the 2nd time in his pro career he made an All-Star Team in 5 seasons. He won his first 7 decisions in a row as a professional pitcher, that in 1977 with the Sarasota (Fla.) White Sox of the "Rookie" class Gulf Coast League. He went on to finish his rookie season with an 8-1 record to lead the league in wins (8), starts (12), strikeouts (61), and, of course, won-loss percentage (.889), and was named to the league's all-star team for his efforts. Promoted to "AA" class ball his sophmore season, Richard won his last 6 decisions in a row at Knoxville to finish with an 8-6 record.

MISCELLANEOUS - Barnes does not have a nickname, and prefers to be called "Richard." A starting pitcher for Lake Worth (FL) High, he was 24-5 in his prep career, with an 11-1 record and a 0.79 ERA his senior year. He has also played American Legion ball.

SALOME ROMERO BAROJAS #30

POSITION: Pitcher

AGE: 25, turns 26 June 16

BORN: Cordoba, Veracruz, MX. 6/16/57

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 5-9, 160

BATS/THROWS: Right/Right

FAMILY: Single

ACQUIRED: Contract purchased from Mexico City Reds Dec. 9, 1981

1982 SEASON—Salome Barojas burst on the major league baseball scene like an explosion the first week of last season. His contract was purchased from the Mexico City Reds in December of 1981 with little fanfare, and when he reported to spring training camp last year, no one took a second look. However, when spring training ended in early April, the statistics report said Barojas was the best pitcher in camp, with a 1.17 ERA in 15.1 innings, and his name appeared on the Sox' 25-man roster that was to open the '82 season. After a weather-delayed opening of the season, the Sox found themselves opening up with a doubleheader in Yankee Stadium; Barojas announced his entrance in the major leagues by pitching 3 innings of one-hit, shutout baseball in the nightcap to preserve a 2-0 shutout win for Britt Burns to earn his first big league save in his very first major league appearance. He went on to post 5 saves in his first 5 consecutive appearances, and closed-out the month of April with 6 saves and a 0.61 ERA in

14.2 innings. Barojas was named American League "Player-of-the-Week" for his 5 saves in his first 5 appearances, the first time a player ever won the honor in his very first week in the majors. Salome posted his first big league win May 19th vs. Texas, and was not tagged for his first big league loss until well into the season, June 2 at Kansas City. Barojas' first season in the major leagues was to have its ups and downs, but he finished strong, recording saves in his last 3 consecutive appearances and a total of 6 in the month of September. Thus he established a new White Sox team record for saves by a rookie (21), and missed the major league record in that department by only 2 (Doug Corbett of Minnesota had 23 saves in 1980).

CAREER—Prior to 1982, Barojas' entire professional career was in Mexico, where he was a premier reliever. In 1981, he owned a 12-3 won-loss record with 13 saves in 50 games, along with a 3.04 ERA. He broke into pro ball at the age of 18 with his hometown Cordoba team, posting a 3-1 record and a 1.88 ERA. In his entire pro career, including last season, he has never had a losing season record.

MISCELLANEOUS—The youngest of 7 children, Salome's father Vincente is a bus driver in Cordoba. His mother, Carolina, made her first trip to the United States last May, and watched her son pitch at Comiskey Park on May 4th, as he collected his 7th save of the season, by pitching 3 shutout innings vs. Toronto. Salome's "discovery" by the White Sox is one of which legends are made: during the 1981 players' strike, Sox Manager Tony La Russa and other Sox officials made 2 trips to Mexico to scout pitcher Angel Moreno and several other Mexican prospects. Barojas was not on the list, but a friend of La Russa asked him to scout a player on the Campeche team. However, after several scouting attempts were frustrated by weather and travel problems, and the casual scheduling of Mexican baseball teams, La Russa missed seeing Moreno, but did watch Campeche play a game vs. the Mexico City Reds. What caught La Russa's eye was not the Campeche pitcher, but the performance of Reds reliever Barojas. On the airplane ride back to Chicago, La Russa told Sox General Manager Roland Hemond, "The guy I want is Barojas." The rest, as they say, is history.

1982 SEASON - The single biggest blow to the White Sox' 1982 pennant hopes occurred Sept. 12 at Oakland Coliseum when Tony Bernazard suffered a fractured left leg (fibula) in the 2nd inning. The freak injury occurred as Tony stabbed a grounder deep behind second base off the bat of Wayne Gross and whirled to throw to first; his spikes caught in the turf and his leg fractured on the pivot. At the time of injury, the Sox were just 3½ games behind the division-leading Kansas City Royals, with 22 games to go. The Sox lost that game, and went on to lose 8 of their next 11 games. Bernazard has developed into a quiet, but steady, leader in the infield in his 2 seasons with the White Sox, and had been enjoying a good season until the injury brought 1982 to a sudden halt. In spite of missing the last 21 games of the season, Tony still finished the year ranked among the Sox' top 5 batters in several different categories: he tied for 4th with 11 homers, was second with 90 runs scored, third with 67 walks, 4th with 11 stolen bases, and 5th on the Sox with 56 RBI's, and he wound-up leading the team with 9 triples (5th in that department in the American League), and sacrifice bunts (16). Tony's best day at the bat last year came June 17th at Oakland when he drove in 4 runs with a pair of hits to lead the Sox to an 11-7 win over the A's.

CAREER - The 1981 season was his first as a regular in the big leagues and he proved equal to the task, emerging as one of the best in the A.L. at his position. Only 2 second basemen hit for a higher average than Bernazard in '81, and his 7 game-winning RBI's placed him second in the A.L. in that department. He committed only 7 errors in 1981 in 355 total chances, and at one point put together a string of 49 consecutive errorless games in which he handled 268 total chances flawlessly. In spite of credentials that indicated great things for Bernazard in the future, he was only a part time player his first 2 seasons in the major leagues (1979 and 1980 with Montreal). He made his major league debut July 12, 1979 with the Expos after hitting .300 in 82 games for their top farm club, the Denver Bears. He then finished the '79 season with the parent club, also hitting .300. He reached base 28 times in 56 plate appearances in his first 22 major league games, for a .500 on-base percentage. Tony hit his first major league homer July 21, 1979, off the Dodgers' Don Sutton. Bernazard enjoyed his best minor league season in 1978; April 23 of that season he wrote his name into the American Association record book with a 6-for-6 performance that included 2 home runs, 3 doubles, and 6 RBI's—all in one game. His 15 total bases in that game eclipsed the old record of 14 (shared by Marv Throneberry and Roger Freed) and made him only the 24th player in A.A. history to get 6 hits in one game.

MISCELLANEOUS - Tony's younger brother, Oscar, played in the Pittsburgh Pirates organization 3 seasons (1975-'77), but a broken arm suffered in a game in July of 1977 ended Oscar's career. Former major leaguer Vic Power taught the Bernazard brothers the game of baseball, and Oscar was signed to his first pro contract at twice the bonus Tony received from the Montreal organization. Tony did not begin to switch-hit until the winter of 1977-'78 in the Puerto Rican Winter League season.

1982 SEASON - Britt Burns heads into the 1983 season aiming to end all speculation about his left shoulder. The loss of Britt for the final 6 weeks of the 1982 season was one of 2 disastrous blows to the Sox' pennant hopes last year (the other was the loss of Tony Bernazard for the remainder of the season when he suffered a broken leg Sept. 12). Britt suffered a strain of the deltoid muscle in his left shoulder Aug. 15 at Comiskey Park in a game against the Yankees, and although he made 4 more scattered appearances for the Sox the rest of the year, he was not effective following the injury. In spite of the shortened season, Burns still wound up with the second best win total on the Sox staff for the season (13) and the best won-loss percentage (.722) on the club. In addition, he wound-up 2nd on the team in strikeouts (116), 3rd in starts (28) and 5th in innings pitched (169.1). The hard-throwing lefty enjoyed a banner year against the Yankees; his best one-game performance of the season occurred Aug. 4 at Yankee Stadium when he recorded the best game of his career: he shutout the Yanks on just 2 hits, for a 7-0 win, while walking none and striking out 3. Overall for the year, he was 2-0 vs. New York with a perfect 0.00 ERA in 18.1 innings (he recorded another shutout vs. the Yankees on Opening Day, April 11), and in his young career enjoys a 5-2 margin over them, with a 1.87 ERA in 67.1 career innings. A measure of Burns' importance to the White Sox: they were 20-8 last season in games Britt started. He was also 7-2 in games at Comiskey Park during the '82 season.

CAREER - Although only a 3-year major leaguer, Burns has firmly established himself as one of the premier starting pitchers in the American League. Since the start of the 1980 season, Britt owns a 38-24 won-loss record, a winning percentage of .548. He led the 1981 Sox pitching staff in wins (10), innings (156.2) and strikeouts (108), tied for the lead in complete games (5), and was 2nd best on the team in ERA (2.64). He finished 2nd in the American League whiffs, and his ratio of 6.2 strikeouts per 9 innings was 3rd best in the A.L. Britt hurled 30 consecutive scoreless innings in August of 1981 (4th best string in Sox history) and won 6 consecutive games in mid-season. He was named to the American League All-Star team in '81 for his efforts (although he did not appear) in only his sophomore season in the major leagues. However, all of Britt's good fortune was tempered by tragedy. July 16, his father, Charley, was struck by an automobile as he stood by the side of the road at the Burns' summer home outside of Birmingham, and subsequently passed away, without regaining consciousness, Sept. 12. During that 2-month period, Britt commuted between his father's bedside and where the Sox were playing without missing a single pitching turn. Signed by the White Sox in 1978 out of high school, he made his big league debut that same summer with 2 starts, both against Detroit. He made 3 different stops in 1979, coming-up to the parent club to stay late in the season. Burns appeared in a grand total of 37 minor league games before coming to the major leagues on a permanent basis.

MISCELLANEOUS - The story of Britt's "discovery" by the White Sox is the stuff of which legends are made. In April of 1978, the former book critic of the Chicago Tribune, and host of the television program "Cromie's Circle," Robert Cromie, was passing through Birmingham, AL on a business trip. Reading a story in the Birmingham Post-Herald about a local pitching sensation who had struck-out 18 batters in a high school game, Cromie tore the article out and mailed it to old friend Bill Veeck, then president of the White Sox, with a message scrawled across the top of the article: "Dear Bill, for your 'dream file.' Best, Bob Cromie." Britt ran up some incredible records while pitching for Birmingham's Huffman High; he had a career ERA of 0.12, won 35 games against only 2 losses (including an 18-game winning streak), and gave up just 30 hits and only 30 walks against 292 strikeouts in 139 innings. Britt and Julie are newlyweds; they were married during the off-season.

(Burns, cont.)

RICHARD ELLIOTT (DOT) DOTSON #49

POSITION: Pitcher
AGE: 24
BORN: Cincinnati, OH 1/10/59
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-0, 196
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Novato, CA
FAMILY: Single
ACQUIRED: From California Angels Dec. 5, 1977, along with Bobby Bonds and Thad Bosley, in exchange for catcher Brian Downing and pitchers Chris Knapp and Dave Frost

1982 SEASON - Richard Dotson had 2 distinct seasons in 1982, a first half when he just plain struggled, and a 2nd half in which he was, at times, absolutely brilliant. After winning his first start of the season at Boston 3-2, Richard lost 7 of his next 8 decisions, and by the All-Star break owned a dismal 3-10 record with a 4.94 ERA. "Dot" opened the second half of the season in the bullpen, and made 3 relief appearances before making a start July 28; he lost that start 2-1 at Baltimore, but allowed only 2 runs on 7 hits through 5.1 innings and looked like the Richard Dotson of 1981. After that, he buckled down to win 8 decisions in a row, finally climbing to the .500 mark (11-11) with a 5-3 victory Sept. 8 at California. Over that 8-win stretch, Richard allowed just 15 runs (12 earned) on 64 hits, with only 20 walks and 40 strike outs over 65 innings, for a snappy 1.66 ERA for that streak. Dotson was named White Sox "Player-of-the-Month" for August as a result of his efforts; he was 6-0 for the month, with a 1.68 ERA in 48.1 innings, allowing just 9 earned runs and one home run for the month, while walking but 17, against 31 strike outs. He ran into some bad luck late in the year, losing his last 4 decisions of the season, 3 of them by one run (2 losses were by 2-1 final scores, the other was a 3-2 loss). For the season, he wound-up with a 3.84 ERA, tied for 2nd best among Sox starters. His best one-game performance of the year was a 4-0 shutout of the Texas Rangers at Comiskey Park, a 4-hit performance.

CAREER - Richard was the Sox' most effective starter in 1981 in only his 2nd full season in the majors; he recorded the 2nd best consecutive scoreless innings streak of the year by a Sox pitcher, putting together a string of 21 straight shutout innings (May 3-15). He also had a pair of 4-game winning streaks during the year. His best one-game performance of the season was a 3-hit, 9-0 shutout win vs. California. Despite struggling in the 2nd half, Dotson still finished the year tied for first place in the American League with 4 shutouts, and the Sox staff in starts (24) and shutouts, and tied for the team leadership in complete games (5). Dotson recorded his first major league shutout in only his 2nd big league start (7-0 on 6 hits vs. Oakland, Sept. 9, 1979), and that was his only shutout until recording 4 the first half of 1981. The only right-hander among the White Sox' "Kiddie Corps" of talented young starters in 1980, Richard was second only to Britt Burns in wins (12), strikeouts (109), and complete games (8), and tied for first with 32 starts. He also established his one-game strikeout high in 1980, whiffing 9 batters in a game on 2 different occasions. Richard made the jump into the major leagues in 1979 directly from the "AA" level.

MISCELLANEOUS - Richard possesses one of the best change-ups in the American League. He credits the late Fred Martin with teaching him that pitch in 1979. "I was trying to throw a change-up on the sidelines one day and he came over and said, 'That doesn't seem to be working, try this,' and he showed me a proper grip on the ball."

1982 SEASON - "Steady" was the name of Carlton Fisk's game in 1982. The 11-year veteran appeared in 135 games for the Sox last year, the most since 1978 with Boston (157 games), improved his season batting average slightly over 1981, and finished among team leaders in several key offensive departments. He was 3rd on the club in stolen bases (17), 4th in RBI's (65) and runs scored (66), and 5th in walks (46). In addition, the White Sox were 3rd in the American League in base runners thrown out attempting to steal, with a .408 percentage, thanks in great measure to Fisk. "Pudge" enjoyed an excellent second half, topped by a sizzling month of August when he batted .315 with 3 homers and 16 RBI's. In addition, he put together a 12-game hitting streak (July 26-Aug. 9), and hit safely in 23 of 25 games (July 26-Aug. 23) during the 2nd half. Carlton belted 2 homers in a game against Oakland June 7 at Comiskey Park to help the Sox erase a 5-0 deficit and win the game 7-6. He also drove-in 5 runs in one game against his former teamates, the Boston Red Sox, July 30, including a 3-run homer, to lead the Sox to a 9-6 win. Carlton hit a whopping .432 with 3 homers and 12 RBI's in 10 games vs. Boston in '82, and in 2 seasons against his former teammates, he owns a .433 average with 6 homers and 20 RBI's in 19 games. During the year, Carlton had, in addition to the 5-RBI game vs. Boston, a 4-RBI game (May 17 vs. Texas) and 6 3-RBI games. In mid-season, Carlton was voted the starting catcher on the 1982 American League All-Star Team, his 9th appearance in the mid-summer classic in 10 seasons. Carlton polled more votes than any other member of the '82 A.L. All-Star team (2,625,650), and in so doing, became the 8th catcher in baseball history to start 5 or more All-Star Games, and only the 4th in the American League in that category. "Pudge" and Cincinnati's Johnny Bench are the only 2 active catchers in the major leagues with as many All-Star starts.

CAREER - The signing of Carlton Fisk during spring training of 1981 was the first–and probably one of the most dramatic–player acquisition of the ownership of Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn. The White Sox opened the 1981 season April 10 at Fenway Park, Carlton's home park for 10 seasons, and in storybook fashion, he hit a 3-run homer in the 8th inning to lead Chicago to a 5-3 win over his old teammates. In the White Sox home opener 4 days later, Fisk added to the dramatics by slamming a grandslammer off Pete Vuckovich to boost the Sox to a 9-3 win over Milwaukee before a record home Opening Day crowd of 51,560. He had another dramatic home run day Sept. 27th at Oakland when he hit 2 homers in one game, one off a right-hander (Jeff Jones) and one off a lefty (Bob Owchinko). He hit .291 in the first half of 1981, with 29 RBI in 46 games. Carlton caught in more games than any other A.L. receiver in 1981 (95) and had the fewest passed balls-per-games-played by a regular (2); that figure represents the fewest passed balls in a season by a Sox catcher since Brian Downing was charged with only one in 1976. Dramatics aside, Fisk's experience and ability to help the Sox' talented, but young, pitching staff was probably of more value to Chicago than his bat. The '81 Sox mound corps finished 3rd in the American League with a team ERA of 3.47, 45 percentage points better than in 1980, and Sox pitchers gave Carlton much of the credit. At season's end, he was voted The Sporting News' "Silver Bat" award as the most productive receiver in the American League, and was named to the U.P.I. All-Star Team. Carlton re-established himself as an everyday catcher in 1980 after an injury plagued season in 1979. In 1980, he caught 115 games (5th most in the American League) and appeared in a total of 131 games (3 games at 1st, 3 at 3rd, 5 in left, and 5 as a "DH") to lead the Red Sox with 12 homers in Fenway Park. He also was charged with only 3 passed balls, least in the league for catchers in 100 or more games. Boston owned a 68-44 record in games when he started behind the plate in '80. Carlton recorded his 1,000th hit June 1, 1980 vs Milwaukee–it was a home run off Rickey Keeton in Boston. In 1977, he tied a major league record with only 4 passed balls in 151 games. Fisk holds the Boston team record for most home runs (26) and RBI's (102) by a catcher; he is also one of only 6 catchers in baseball history to score 100 runs and drive-in 100 in the same season (1977). He led all American League catchers in total chances in 1972, his rookie season, and won a "Gold Glove" and American League "Rookie of the Year" honors for his efforts. Carlton tied a major league record April 6, 1973 when he hit 2 home runs on Opening Day. His dramatic

12th inning, game-winning home run in Game #6 of the 1975 World Series has been voted one of the all-time great moments in baseball.

MISCELLANEOUS - When he came to the White Sox, Carlton reversed the number he wore in Boston for 10 years (#27) to get his White Sox uniform number because "that was the year my son Casey was born, was my rookie year in the majors, and represents a turn-around in my career." Fisk acquired the nickname "Pudge" as a youngster growing up in New England. Chosen number one in the 1967 winter free agent draft by Boston, he was MVP in baseball, basketball, and soccer at Charlestown (NH) High School before attending the University of New Hampshire. His brother, Calvin, was a catcher in the Baltimore organization, and outfielder Rick Miller is his brother-in law.

SCOTT BRIAN FLETCHER #46

POSITION: Infielder

AGE: 24, turns 25 July 30

BORN: Fort Walton Beach, FL 7/30/58

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 5-11, 168

BATS/THROWS: Right/Right

RESIDENCE: Wadsworth, OH

FAMILY: Single

ACQUIRED: From Chicago Cubs, with pitchers Dick Tidrow and Randy Martz, and infielder Pat Tabler, in exchange for pitchers Steve Trout and Warren Brusstar, Jan. 26, 1983.

1982 SEASON - Scott Fletcher was among the hitting leaders in the American Association last year, batting .313 for the Iowa Oaks to finish 12th in the A.A. batting race. He finished 4th in the league in hits (157), and led the Oaks in sacrifice flies (14); his 90 runs scored ranked him second on the Iowa club in that department, and Scott was one of 28 batters in the American Association to hit a grandslam home run. In addition to his impressive offensive showing, he was also the 2nd best defensive shortstop in the American Association last season. He had a .957 fielding percentage, while leading the league in assists (357) and total chances (607). Following that outstanding season at Iowa, Fletcher was called-up to the Cubs Sept. 3, and began playing fulltime at shortstop for the Cubs after Larry Bowa injured a finger.

CAREER - Fletcher made his major league debut April 14, 1981, against Philadelphia, but after appearing in just 10 games was optioned back to Iowa until September. He finished the '81 season ranked 3rd in the American Association in fielding at shortstop (.952), while leading the league in putouts (222). The 1980 season was a banner one for Scott: he was the Texas League All-Star 2nd baseman, and was voted the league's "Most Popular Player" while leading the circuit in runs scored (111) and triples (11), and finishing 7th in the league's batting race with a .327 average. He led the league in defense at second base, with 354 putouts, 390 assists, and 112 double plays. In his rookie season, 1979, he was voted "Rookie-of-the-Year" in the New York/Penn League, after batting .310. He hit a grandslam home run in his first official "at bat" in the pros, in the opening game of the season, June 19.

MISCELLANEOUS - Following a stellar collegiate and high school career, Scott was signed by the Chicago Cubs in 1979. He had been the Cubs' first selection in the secondary phase of the June, 1979 Free Agent Draft. It was the 4th time Fletcher had been drafted by a major league organization; he was first drafted by the Dodgers in June of 1976, then by Oakland in January of 1978, and again by Houston in June of 1978. At Valencia (FL) Junior College he was named "Florida Junior College Player of the Year" and All-Florida Division II shortstop while setting a handful of team records. The following year at Georgia Southern College, he led his team to the NCAA Division I Atlantic Region tournament, by batting .413 in 61 games.

LORENZO GRAY #27

POSITION:	Infielder/Outfielder
AGE:	24, turns 25 April 4
BORN:	Mound Bayou, MI 4/4/58
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-1, 180
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Lynwood, CA
FAMILY:	Single
ACQUIRED:	Contract purchased from Edmondton (CAN.) Trappers July 5, 1982.

1982 SEASON - Lorenzo Gray enjoyed an outstanding season with the White Sox top farm club last year, his best in 7 professional seasons. Although playing 5 positions in all for the Edmonton (CAN.) Trappers of the Pacific Coast League (3rd base, 2nd base, left field, right field, designated hitter), he spent most of the season at 3rd. He finished 2nd in the P.C.L. batting race with a .358 average, and was named to the P.C.L. All-Star team for his efforts. Highlight of Gray's '82 season was a 40-game hitting streak in mid-year, the longest batting streak in all of pro baseball in '82. From May 6 through June 24 he hit safely in every game in which he appeared. On top of that he hit safely in 52 of 54 games in which he appeared from April 22 to June 24. When the White Sox were looking for some infield help in mid-season, Lorenzo's contract was purchased by the parent club July 5. He made his major league debut as a pinch runner July 8 vs. Detroit, and scored, then made his big league debut at third base July 9 in Toronto. Lorenzo was optioned back to Edmonton July 18, and completed the Trappers' season before returning to the White Sox Sept. 10.

CAREER - Gray has progressed steadily through the White Sox farm system. He began his pro career with the Sarasota (FL) White Sox of the Gulf Coast League in 1976, then split the 1977 season between Sarasota and the next rung up the ladder, the Appleton (WI) Foxes of the class "A" Midwest League. In his 2nd season at Sarasota, Lorenzo led Gulf Coast League third basemen in fielding percentage (.927) and putouts (51). He spent a full season at Appleton in 1978, where he enjoyed one of his best seasons in the minors as he batted .293 with 2 homers and 35 RBI's. Gray then played at Appleton and Knoxville in 1979 before being promoted to the White Sox "AA" farm club, the Glens Falls White Sox, in 1980 where he batted .288 with 6 homers and 28 RBI's. He began the 1981 season with Edmonton, but after hitting only .208 he went back to Glens Falls in mid-season and hit .271 with 4 homers and 26 RBI's.

MISCELLANEOUS - Gray was a standout football and baseball player at Lynwood (Cal.) High School; he was "Athlete-of-the-Year" his senior year and MVP and captain of his prep baseball team, as well as an all-conference football player. Both his baseball team and football team won conference championships during his prep career.

JERRY WAYNE HAIRSTON #17

POSITION:	Outfielder
AGE:	31
BORN:	Birmingham, AL 2/16/52
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	5-10, 180
BATS/THROWS:	Switch/Right
RESIDENCE:	Ft. Worth, TX
FAMILY:	Married (Esperanza), 3 sons (Jerry Jr., b 5/29/76; Justin, b 6/16/77; and Scott, b 6/25/80)
ACQUIRED:	From Mexico City Reds of Mexican League for cash Sept. 10, 1981

1982 SEASON - Jerry Hairston once again was "Mr. Reliable" off the bench for the White Sox. Time after time he came off the bench to provide key pinch-hits for the Sox. He finished the '82 season with 11 pinch-hits in 47 at-bats (.234), including a pair of pinch home runs and 9 RBI's, to be the Sox' top pinch-hitter in '82. Highlight of his season occurred July 8 at Comiskey Park, when he hit a 2-out, 2-run homer in the bottom of the 9th inning off Jerry Udjur to lead the Sox to a dramatic 3-2 come-from-behind victory. Hairston's other pinch homer came off Rick Langford of the A's to complete back-to-back homers with Carlton Fisk and lead the Sox to a 6-5 win June 8. The 2 pinch homers by Hairston just missed tying the team mark in that department; Oscar Gamble hit a club record 3 for the White Sox in 1977. Jerry's 47 pinch appearances led the American League (just ahead of Terry Crowley of Baltimore, who had 36 pinch appearances), and his 11 pinch hits tied for the most in the A.L. last season (with Jeff Burroughs of Oakland and Wayne Nordhagen of Toronto). Jerry also had 3 game-winning RBI's for the year.

CAREER - Jerry Hairston returned to the major leagues in 1981 after a 4-year absence to give the White Sox some added pinch-hit punch, and provided some immediate dividends. Making his first appearance Sept. 15, he successfully pinch-hit at Seattle in the 9th inning, and went on to hit safely in 3 of his first 4 games, for a .364 average (4-for-11). He capped his return to the majors the final day of the 1981 season by smacking a grandslam homer off Don Cooper of Minnesota, and driving-in 6 RBI's for the day—including the game winner in the 9th off Twins' relief ace Doug Corbett—to give the Sox a 13-12 win and clinch 3rd for them. Prior to being acquired by the White Sox, Hairston had his best season ever in the Mexican League, hitting .293 with 7 homers, 74 RBI's and 32 stolen bases in 123 games to lead the Mexico City Reds to the Mexican League championship. In addition, he chalked-up 123 walks against only 33 strike-outs in those 123 games. In the playoffs, Jerry hit .345, and set a new Mexican League playoff record with 17 RBI's. Hairston signed his first pro contract with the White Sox in 1970, and made his big league debut with the Sox in 1973. He spent 5 partial seasons with the Sox, appearing in anywhere from 44 to 69 games in each of those years. His best season was 1975 when he batted .283 and drove-in 23 runs. A real handyman, he was used as an outfielder, designated hitter, pinch hitter and bullpen catcher by the Sox. Jerry was acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates June 13, 1977 for a cash consideration and finished the year with the Bucs, going to Mexico in 1978.

MISCELLANEOUS - Jerry is the son of White Sox scout and minor league instructor Sam Hairston Sr. Hairston's brothers John and Sam Jr. also played pro ball at one time. An all-star and captain of his Gardendale (AL) High School team, he attended Lawson State Junior College in Birmingham before signing a pro contract.

KEVIN JOHN HICKEY #45

HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-1, 170

FAMILY:	Single
ACQUIRED:	Signed by White Sox as a free agent Aug. 18, 1977

1982 SEASON - The usual "sophomore jinx" did not plague Kevin Hickey in 1982. Rapidly becoming the "Mr. Excitement" of the White Sox, Hickey led the Sox' pitching staff with a 3.00 ERA in '82, and finished 2nd in appearances, with 60, just one short of Salome Barojas, and also finished 2nd to Barojas in the save department, with 6. After going winless in his first major league season, Kevin posted his first big league win on the first day of the 1982 season, silencing the Yankees over 1.2 innings of relief in the first game of a doubleheader at Yankee Stadium to gain the victory in a 7-6, 12-inning battle. Hickey put together a 3-month stretch when he did not yield a home run (April 24-July 24); he kept the ball in the park for 34 consecutive innings before Toronto's Jesse Barfield homered off on him. Kevin pitched exceptionally well in August, recording a 2-0 won-loss mark with a 1.74 ERA in 20.2 innings. He also did exceptionally well in his own backyard; at Comiskey Park he was 3-1 with one save in 47.1 innings last season.

CAREER - After but 3 seasons of pro ball under his belt, Kevin Hickey earned a spot on the Sox pitching roster in the spring training of 1981 as a short reliever, and filled an important role for the Sox. He made his major league debut April 14, 1981, and did not allow his first big league hit until his 4th appearance; he owned a perfect 0.00 ERA in a total of 6 appearances in April, and did not get charged with his first major league run until May 1st. Kevin finally chalked-up his first major league save June 8, against Toronto. In 1980, Kevin enjoyed his first winning season in pro ball, posting a 9-7 record for the Sox class "AA" Glens Falls, (NY) White Sox. More importantly, he was named winner of the "Silver Glove" award as the best fielding pitcher in all of the minor leagues in 1980. He pitched 169 innings for the GlenSox, all as a starter, committing no errors and leading all Eastern League pitchers by taking part in 8 doubleplays.

MISCELLANEOUS - The Kevin Hickey "story" is that of a dream come true. He did not play baseball in high school, growing up on Chicago's Southside just a few blocks from Comiskey Park, in the city's Brighton Park area. Following graduation from high school, he went to work for a local steel company, and played 16-inch softball (a game peculiar to Chicago), leading his team, the "Bobcats", to the 1976 world 16-inch championship. Because of a change in shifts at the steel plant, Kevin was forced to give up the softball team and switched to playing weekends for the Markham Cardinals, a semi-pro baseball team. Invited to a White Sox summer try-out at Comiskey Park in 1978, he impressed Sox personnel enough to be offered a contract. Hickey graduated from Kelly High School on Chicago's Southside after also attending St. Rita High School in Chicago, alma mater of former Sox Pitcher Ed Farmer (now with Philadelphia) and Toronto pitcher Jim Clancy. An interesting sidenote to the "Hickey Story": Chicago SUN-TIMES columnist Mike Royko, a 16-inch softball player of some intensity, recalled facing Hickey in Kevin's 16-inch days, and sent a reporter to Chicago's City Hall to check Hickey's birth certificate, only to find that Kevin is a year older than he originally admitted. Kevin's response to the Royko expose: "Ask him about the time I hit 4 straight home runs off of him in Thillens Stadium!" (Thillens is a softball stadium on Chicago's Northside.) Kevin is the middle of 3 brothers; brothers Tom and Jim continue to play in 16-inch softball leagues around Chicago.

MARC KEVIN HILL #7

POSITION: Catcher
AGE: 31
BORN: Elsberry, MO 2/18/52
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-3, 215
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Clearwater, FL
FAMILY: Married (Cheri), 2 sons (Kevin, b 11/17/74; Kyle, b 6/21/79).
ACQUIRED: Signed as a free agent Feb. 12, 1981

1982 SEASON - Marc Hill is acknowledged as one of the best back-up catchers in baseball, but beyond that his presence and experience on a team adds what amounts to another coach on the staff. He made 27 starts for the Sox last year, giving Carlton Fisk an occasional rest, and batted .261 in 53 total appearances, committing only one error over that entire stretch. Marc appeared in his 500th career game May 21 against the Cleveland Indians and celebrated by belting a 2-run homer to lead the Sox to a 3-2 victory. He also had his first 3-hit game in the American League August 3 at Yankee Stadium, and narrowly missed a 4th hit in the 9th inning when Dave Collins of the Yankees robbed him of that opportunity with a spectacular catch in center field. Hill shot down 7 of 16 would-be base stealers for a 44 percentage in that department, best on the Sox catching staff. Marc was the starting catcher in the Sox' shortest game of the year, that a 2:05 contest at Minnesota on the final day of the 1982 season (Oct. 3). He also drove-in 3 runs in that game, his best one-game performance of the season in the RBI department.

CAREER - Playing behind Carlton Fisk and Jim Essian in 1981, Marc was a member of what was described as the best catching corps in baseball, but that fact, combined with the shortened season, limited his playing time. He impressed Manager Tony La Russa enough, that the Sox felt comfortable in trading Essian to Seattle in exchange for Tom Paciorek after the end of the '81 season. Marc appeared in only 15 games in 1981, and in those few appearances pinch-hit 3 times, caught 14 times, played first base once and third base once. Characteristic of his nature, he agreed to be optioned to the Sox' minor league club at Glens Falls, (NY) late in August (Aug. 15-Sept. 1) to help the club with a numbers problem on the big league roster. At Glens Falls, he appeared in 2 games, going 3-for-7 (.429). The San Francisco Giants' regular catcher 3 seasons in a row (1977, '78, and '79), Marc began the 1980 season as a back-up receiver, and then after appearing in only 17 games for the Giants he was acquired on waivers by the Seattle Mariners June 20. A broken left wrist, suffered July 24 in a collision at homeplate with John Stearns of the Mets, cut the '79 season short for him. In his 63 games for the Giants in '79, Marc committed only 3 errors and led all San Francisco catchers in caught-stealing percentage, gunning down 28 would-be base stealers. Hill spent a total of just over 5 years in the San Francisco organization, after 5 seasons in the St. Louis Cardinals system. He was signed by the Cardinals in 1970, and made his major league debut with them Sept. 28, 1973 at the age of 21. In that game, he caught a 2-hit shut-out against Philadelphia. Hill was named to all-star teams at 3 different levels of minor league play enroute to the majors.

MISCELLANEOUS - Marc was born and raised just 50 miles from Busch Stadium in St. Louis. An all-stater in baseball and basketball, he was the first athlete in the history of Lincoln County (MO) High School to win letters in 3 sports (baseball, basketball, track) in his sophomore year. His father, Edward, was a pitcher in the St. Louis Browns' organization in the 40's. In the off-season, Marc works with his father in the home-building business.

DEWEY LaMARR (LaMARR) HOYT #31

POSITION:	Pitcher
AGE:	28
BORN:	Columbia, SC 1/1/55
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-1, 222
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Columbia
FAMILY:	Married (Sylvia)
ACQUIRED:	From New York Yankees, along with outfielder Oscar Gamble and pitcher Bob Polinsky and cash, in exchange for shortstop Bucky Dent April 5, 1977

1982 SEASON - LaMarr Hoyt had, without question, the finest season of his professional baseball career in 1982 and at the same time may have finally established himself as a bonafide major league starting pitcher. Hoyt not only led the American League in victories (19) last year, but he led the Sox pitching staff in most every department, and set one new Sox team record while tying another. He led the Sox staff in wins, starts (32), complete games (14), innings pitched (239.2), and strike outs (124), while tying for the team leadership in shutouts (2). His 3.53 ERA was tops among Sox starters. But all that aside, LaMarr wrote himself into the White Sox record book by winning his first 9 decisions in a row. In so doing, he set a new Sox team record for consecutive wins over 2 seasons (14), and tied the club record—which had stood for 65 years—for consecutive wins at the start of the season (9). The original record of 9-in-a-row was set by "Lefty" Williams at the start of the 1917 season. It was a crazy season for Hoyt; he opened the '82 season as the Sox' short right-handed relief specialist, and won his first 3 decisions in a row in relief (all against Baltimore), and then the schedule gave him a shot to start April 27th at Milwaukee. He allowed one earned run on just 4 hits for an 11-2 victory, and appeared only once in relief the remainder of the season. His string of consecutive wins was finally snapped May 29th at Cleveland, when he lost a 5-2 decision to the Indians. He struggled a little in mid-season, but bounced back in the last month to win 4 of his last 6 decisions of the year, including his last 3 in a row. In addition to leading the A.L. in victories, his 14 complete games ranked 4th in the league. Hoyt had an even more amazing string than his others ended this past year. When he dropped a 5-4 decision to the Oakland A's June 9 at Comiskey Park it marked the first defeat of his career at his home park after 16 consecutive home field victories. That loss remained a rare one for Hoyt; overall at home in 1982, he was 13-3 with a 3.52 ERA and 7 complete games, giving him a lifetime Comiskey Park record of 23 wins against only 3 losses.

CAREER - LaMarr posted a composite record of 18-6 for the Sox in the 1981 and '80 seasons (a .750 winning percentage), as well as tying for the team lead with 10 saves in '81. Hoyt set a personal career high with 43 appearances in 1981, and it appeared he would be the Sox' right-handed short relief specialist in 1982—but that was before Salome Barojas and Hoyt's own brilliant starting performance. Hoyt had been a starter most of his minor league career, but during the winter of 1978-'79 Manager Tony La Russa, then manager of the Sox' minor league club at Knoxville, advised Hoyt that the fastest route to the major leagues was as a reliever. He began working in relief in 1979, and made his big league debut with the White Sox that same season. Working both in relief and as a starter in 1980, he won 5 of his last 6 decisions of the season as he established himself in the majors. The 1980 season was one of "firsts" for Hoyt; after opening the year at Iowa, he was called up June 17 and posted his first big league win in his first appearance—on that date—at Cleveland. He made his first major league start July 26 at Texas and pitched his first big league complete game for a 4-3 win. In his short major league career, LaMarr has established a couple of favorite foes; he owns a career record of 4-0 against Milwaukee with a 2.84 ERA in 19 innings; his best ERA is a career 1.69 mark vs. Detroit in 16 innings. Signed by the Yankees to his first pro contract in June of 1973, he was told he was being groomed to replace "Catfish" Hunter of the Yankee staff after the 1976 season when he was 15-8 with a 2.50 ERA for the Yankee farm club at West Haven. Shortly thereafter, he was acquired by the White Sox. He struggled his first season in the White Sox system, but finally turned it around in 1978, leading the Midwest League with 18 wins.

MISCELLANEOUS - Hoyt prefers his middle name, "LaMarr." His father, a former minor league pitcher is also named Dewey LaMarr Hoyt. "He was always called 'Dewey' and I've always been 'LaMarr,'" he said. After hitting 34 homers in 20 games as a Little Leaguer, Hoyt decided to switch to pitching as a sophomore in high school. He hurled a no-hitter in his first season as a pitcher, and went on to letter in 3 sports at Keenan High School in Columbia (SC). His senior year he was captain of both his prep football and baseball teams and an all-stater in baseball.

TIMOTHY CRAIG (TIM) HULETT #21

POSITION:	Infielder
AGE:	23
BORN:	Springfield, IL 1/12/60
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-0, 185
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Springfield, IL
FAMILY:	Married (Linda)
ACQUIRED:	Signed as free agent with Glens Falls May 28, 1980.

1982 SEASON - Tim Hulett enjoyed his best professional season last year with the Glens Falls (N.Y.) White Sox. He was not only named to the Eastern League All-Star team, but also selected as the best second baseman in all of "AA" ball last season by BASEBALL AMERICA Magazine. The GlenSox everyday second baseman, he led the Eastern League in runs scored (113), while belting a career high 22 home runs and driving-in a career high 87 runs. Why the sudden offensive surge? "In 1981, I was the man of 1,000 (batting) stances. Last spring training (Sox batting coach) Charlie Lau gave me one stance to work from as a base." Of his sudden success? "I really didn't expect it," he said, with a measure of understatement. And of his performance in the field, his Glens Falls teammates are lavish in their praise. Shortstop J.B. Brown: "He turns the double play better than anybody I've ever seen." Veteran pitcher (now a coach in the Sox organization) Bill Atkinson: "He's got good range, a decent arm, and he's good at turning two (outs)."

CAREER - In 1981, Hulett made only 16 errors in 134 games as the Glens Falls' regular second baseman, and Sox Manager Tony La Russa, touring the minor league organization, said after watching Tim in action, "He is ready to play defensively in the major leagues right now." Offensively, his 27 doubles were the second best total on the GlenSox team for the season. He began his pro career in 1980 at Glens Falls, but played both at the "AAA" level and the "A" level before the year was out.

MISCELLANEOUS - A native of Springfield, IL, Tim was selected in the first round of the secondary phase of the January, 1980 Free Agent Draft, the 3rd player in the country to be taken in that draft. He attended the University of South Florida and Miami Dade North Community College; at U.S.F. he set a new school record with 19 doubles in one season, and at Miami Dade North he set a new school season mark with 14 homers, breaking a record previously set by Pat Putnam of the Seattle Mariners. At Springfield's Lanphier High School, Tim played basketball, football, and baseball, and led the city conference in hitting, home runs and stolen bases all 4 years of his prep career.

JAMES LESTER (JIM) KERN #67

POSITION: Pitcher
AGE: 33, turns 34 March 15
BORN: Gladwin, MI 3/15/49
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-5, 205
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Arlington, TX
FAMILY: Married (Jan), 2 sons (Jason, b 3/30/73; Ryan, b 9/26/77).
ACQUIRED: From Cincinnati Reds Aug. 23, 1982 in exchange for outfielder Leo Garcia and infielder Wade Rowdon.

1982 SEASON - The White Sox acquired Jim Kern in August of last season in an effort to boost their shot at the 1982 division title. It wasn't to be, but that certainly was not Kern's fault. A little rusty upon first arriving at Comiskey Park, he soon worked out the kinks and collected 3 saves and 2 wins in 13 appearances for the Sox. He started one game when the Sox' starting staff was in a bind, the 2nd game of a doubleheader at Comiskey Park September 27 vs. Seattle, and performed so well, the Sox staff toyed with the idea of converting him to a starting role. That start was his first since June 5th, 1980 vs. Kansas City. In last September's start, Jim went 6.1 innings, allowing just one run on 4 hits to collect the win in the Sox' 4-1 victory. Kern's best relief job of the season for the Sox occurred September 21 at Seattle's Kingdome when he went 4.2 innings, giving-up only one run while fanning 5. Jim opened the 1982 season with the Cincinnati Reds, and although his won-loss record for them was only 3-5, he owned a 2.84 ERA in 76 innings in his National League stint. For the season, he made a total of 63 appearances, pitching a combined 104 innings, with a composite record of 5-6, with 5 saves and an overall 3.46 ERA for the year. Kern actually began the 1982 calendar year as a member of the New York Mets (the Texas Rangers traded him to New York Dec. 11, 1981, in exchange for 2nd baseman Doug Flynn and pitcher Dan Boitano), but the Mets sent him on to Cincinnati prior to the start of the '82 season (he went to the Reds along with pitcher Greg Harris and catcher Alex Trevino Feb. 10, 1982, in exchange for outfielder George Foster). Kern and the Reds became disenchanted with each other shortly after midseason, and Jim, aware of the Reds' neatness code, began to sprout a beard. "The beard," he said, "was to expedite my departure."

CAREER - Kern has enjoyed an impressive and often spectacular career as a short relief specialist. He was the best relief pitcher in the American League in 1979, winning both the "Relief-Man-of-the-Year" and "Fireman-of-the-Year" awards with the Texas Rangers after posting a 13-5 won-loss record, 29 saves, and a 1.57 ERA. Jim and former New York Yankee relief starter Sparky Lyle (who was with the Sox briefly last season) were the Rangers' bullpen for 2 seasons, where they were known as "Craziness, Inc." for their famous off-the-field hijinx. Kern suffered an off-year in 1980 because of a neck injury, and spent the 1981 season pitching himself back into form. After a stint with Wichita of the American Association on rehabilitative option, Kern returned to the Rangers Aug. 11 and made 16 appearances for them through the end of the season, recorded a win, 5 saves, and a 1.50 ERA. Prior to his arrival in Texas, Kern spent 5-plus seasons with the Cleveland Indians, amassing a total of 28 wins and 46 saves in 166 relief appearances. Kern has been throwing his blazing fastball past hitters ever since he began his pro career at Rock Hill in 1968. He recorded 776 whiffs in 733 innings of minor league ball averaging 9.5 strike outs per 9 innings, before making it to the majors to stay in 1975. He was the American Association "Pitcher-of-the-Year" in 1974 with Oklahoma City. In 736 major league innings, through the end of the 1982 season, Jim owns 625 career K's, a ration of 7.6 per 9 innings pitched.

MISCELLANEOUS - To put it mildly, Kern is an individualist. He has been credited (or charged) with a long list of practical jokes during his career. A former teammate once described him as "a cross between Bill Walton and Ichabod Crane," but Kern has been quoted as describing himself as the Great Emu, prompting baseball writer Phil Hersh of the CHICAGO SUN-TIMES to quip "Loon might be more accurate." Jim says, however, that all of that is behind him. "It's time for me to find a place where I might have a future; I'm happy to be someplace where I can show what I can do." "That," wrote Hersh, "may mean off the field, as well as on it."

RONALD DALE (RON) KITTLE #42

POSITION:	Outfielder

HEIGHT/WEIGHT	6-4, 200

1982 SEASON - There is nothing left for Ron Kittle to do—at the minor league level, at least. As baseball people like to say, "He did it all" last year with the Edmonton (CAN.) Trappers of the Pacific Coast League. Kittle was named "Minor League Player-of-the-Year" after compiling the best set of hitting statistics of any player in pro baseball, and that covers a lot of ground. He led the P.C.L. with 50 home runs and 144 RBI's, but despite batting .345, missed the Triple Crown. The P.C.L. "MVP" and All-Star also led the league in slugging percentage (.729) with 50 homers, 10 triples, 22 doubles, and 91 singles for 365 total bases. His 1982 stats gave him a 2-season total of 90 home runs, 246 RBI's, and a composite .336 batting average for 236 games. The young slugger's Herculian home run hitting feats uncovered several interesting statistics: He is one of only 5 pro players to hit 50 or more home runs in one season over the past 20 years (the last major leaguer to do it was George Foster of Cincinnati in 1977 when he slammed 52); only 5 pro hitters in the last 25 years have had back-to-back seasons of 40 or more homers (the last major leaguer to accomplish that feat was Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia, with 45 in 1979 and 48 in 1980) and Ron is only the second pro player in the last 25 seasons to have hit 40 or more homers, driving-in 140 or more runs, and hit .300 or better (the only other batter was Steve Bilko of the Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League in 1957 when he hit 56 homers, had 140 RBI's, and hit an even .300). To make the story even more incredible, Kittle accomplished his feats this past season in spite of missing 2 weeks in mid-June (15 games) because of bone chips in his right thumb. Ron was called-up to the Sox in September, and made his big league debut Sept. 2 at Comiskey Park against the Texas Rangers. He made his first major league start Sept. 4 vs. the same Rangers, and collected his first major league hit by lashing a double down the left field line. Ron recorded his first major league home run Oct. 2 in Minnesota's MetroDome, off the Twins' Frank Viola, and wound-up with 7 RBI in 29 at-bats for the month, 13 of those as a pinch hitter.

CAREER - Kittle was also named "MVP" of a league the previous season, 1981, when he slammed 40 home runs and drove-in 102 runs to lead the Eastern League in both those departments, as well as hitting .324, narrowly missing that league's Triple Crown because of a rules technicality. Ron actually had the highest batting average in the Eastern League among batters with enough at-bats to qualify for the batting crown. However, another batter who did not own enough at-bats, had his average "adjusted" to nose Kittle out by 5 percentage points. Ron was the best of a bumper crop of home run hitters at Glens Falls that season; the GlenSox hit more homers than any other team in pro ball in 1981 (179), and Kittle single-handedly accounted for nearly one quarter of those himself. In addition, he led the league with 269 total bases and finished second in runs scored with 97. His outstanding 1981 season came on the heels of a promising 1980 season when he hit .316 in 61 games at Appleton and was named to the Midwest League All-Star team, and then promoted to Glens Falls, where he hit .308 in 17 games. But things were not always so rosy for the Gary, IN native. Signed to his first pro contract by the Dodger organization in 1977, he hit poorly both that season and the next, and he said, "My right arm felt like it was partially paralyzed." After many fruitless tests and examinations, his problems were diagnosed as a pinched nerve in his neck, traced to a pair of crushed vertebrae. The cause of the injury remains a mystery to him. "I guess somewhere along the line, sliding into home or something, I damaged my neck." He underwent spinal fusion surgery in 1978 and was in a neck brace for 4 months. The Dodgers, thinking his baseball career over, released him. Then, in September of 1978, while he was working as an iron construction worker, former Sox great Billy Pierce arranged a special try-out for him at Comiskey Park. Injuries continued to haunt him in 1979; he missed a month of the season with torn tendons in a thumb, but tenacity on his part and patience on the White Sox' part has begun to pay dividends.

MISCELLANEOUS - Kittle graduated from William Wirt High School (Gary IN) after lettering in 3 sports. He was an all-state basketball player in a state noted for outstanding prep cage teams. Kittle is the first White Sox player to receive the "Minor League Player-of-the-Year" award since 1963, when Don Buford won it after batting .336 for Indianapolis of the American Association. Tom Paciorek of the White Sox won the honor in 1972 while with Albuquerque, the Dodgers' "AAA" farm club.

1982 SEASON - The plan, going into last season, was for Jerry Koosman to be a left-handed reliever for the White Sox. Weather intervened right off the top, and after an unprecedented snowfall in early April postponed the Sox opener a half-dozen times, Jerry was the Sox' Opening Day pitcher, starting the first game of a doubleheader at Yankee Stadium. The Sox won that game 7-6 in 12 innings, and after one more start, Koosman found himself in the bullpen, according to plan. However, it became apparent by mid-season that Koosman's place was in the starting rotation, and he was returned there July 10 to face Toronto. The Sox won that game 6-5, although Jerry did not get credit for the win, but in the 2nd half of 1982 he became the backbone of the Sox starting corps, chalking up a 9-4 record, with a 3.41 ERA over the remainder of the season. He won 9 of his last 11 decisions of the year, topped-off by a 5-1 record in September. His 11 season wins tied him for 3rd best on the Sox staff, and his 42 games, 3 saves, 173.1 innings, and 88 strike outs all ranked 4th on the Sox staff. In a most important category, Koosman gave-up only 9 homers for the season, tying him with Dennis Lamp for the fewest allowed by a Sox pitcher on a staff that was the only one in the American League to yield less than 100 homers in 1982.

CAREER - Koosman is carving himself a notch in baseball history. Only 4 pitchers active in the American League last season have more career wins than Jerry: Gaylord Perry (307), Jim Palmer (263), Tommy John (237), and Luis Tiant (229). He is 46th on the all-time major league win list (9th among all active pitchers), and his 2,269 career strike out total ranks him 27th on the all-time whiff list (also 9th among active pitchers). He enters the 1983 season just 34 strike outs behind San Francisco Giant great Juan Marichal. Jerry recorded his 2,000th strike out June 3, 1980 when he fanned Boston's Dwight Evans. A starter most of his major league career, the Minnesota Twins converted him to short relief at the start of the 2nd half of the 1981 season, and he chalked-up 5 saves in 7 appearances. After joining the White Sox, he worked both relief and as a spot starter in '81. A native of the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, Koosman spent 2½ seasons with the Twins after a little more than 11 seasons with the New York Mets. During that period he was a member of the "Amazin' Mets" who won the World Series in 1969. He appeared in 2 National League Championship Series and 2 World Series, all with the Mets, and owns a combined, perfect 4-0 record in post season play, including 2 wins over the Baltimore Orioles in the '69 Series. With Minnesota, Koosman tied the club all-time one-game strike-out record June 23, 1980 when he fanned 15 Kansas City batters in Minnesota. In 1983, Jerry is entering his 16th season in the major leagues.

MISCELLANEOUS - A 2-time National League All-Star pitcher (1968-'69), Koosman was signed by the New York Mets in 1965. He made his major league debut with the Mets in 1968 and recorded a brilliant rookie season, setting Mets club one-season records for wins (19), ERA (2.08), and shut-outs (7) to be named National League "Rookie Pitcher-of-the-Year." Earned a line in baseball trivia books by becoming the first pitcher in New York Mets history to win a season opener, beating San Francisco 3-0 (That game also,marked his first big league win and shut-out). Jerry has won 20 or more games twice in his major league career (21-10 in '76 with Mets, 20-13 in '79 with the Twins). He attended the University of Minnesota.

DENNIS PATRICK LAMP #53

POSITION:	Pitcher
AGE:	30, turns 31 Sept. 23
BORN:	Los Angeles, CA 9/23/52
RESIDENCE:	Evanston, IL
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-3, 210
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
FAMILY:	Married (Janet), a daughter (Hillary, b 3/20/80)
ACQUIRED:	From the Chicago Cubs, in exchange for Ken Kravec, March 28, 1981

1982 SEASON - Once again in 1982, Dennis Lamp was indespensable in his dual role of starting pitcher and relief pitcher. He opened the season bouncing back and forth between the bullpen and the starting rotation, and was 4-0 as a starter over the first 6 weeks of the season. Placed more-or-less permanently in the bullpen in August, Dennis appeared in 12 games in relief, posting 4 saves, a win, and a 2.67 ERA in 16 innings. He was returned to the starting rotation August 31, and finished the year by posting a 3-1 record in September and October. His 11 wins matched a personal one-season high for him, and tied him for 3rd on the Sox staff. Dennis was also 3rd on the staff in games (44), saves (5), and innings (189.2). He and Jerry Koosman each allowed just 9 homers for the season to share the honor of giving-up the fewest homers on the Sox staff. Lamp had 2 shutouts during '82 (to tie him for first on the club with LaMarr Hoyt), and both of them were against Detroit. He blanked the Tigers July 7th at Tiger Stadium on only 5 hits for a 7-0 win, then 12 days later whitewashed them again, this time at Comiskey Park (July 19th), on 7 hits, for a 6-0 victory. The Tigers have been Dennis' favorite foes in his 2 seasons in the American

League; he is 3-0 against them with a 1.20 ERA in 30 innings pitched.

CAREER - Lamp, who was also "Mr. Versatility" for the White Sox in his first season with the White Sox, came within a whisker of winning the American League's ERA title in 1981. He was among the A.L.'s ERA leaders in the final days of the season; and it wasn't until his final outing of the year that he dropped out of first place, finally finishing 3rd with a 2.41 mark, by far the best personal one-season ERA of his major league career. Dennis also came within an eyelash of pitching a no-hitter in 1981; Aug. 25th at County Stadium in Milwaukee, he pitched 8 innings of no-hit ball against the Brewers before Robin Yount poked a dying quail double into short left-center field to lead-off the 9th inning. Dennis then settled for a one-hitter, the second of his major league career (the other occurred June 9, 1978 vs. the San Diego Padres), and a 5-1 win over Milwaukee. A steady performer all season long, Lamp was particularly effective on the road for the Sox, compiling a 5-0 record and a 1.95 ERA away from Comiskey Park. Lamp signed his first pro contract with the Chicago Cubs in 1971, and made his major league debut with them in 1977 after a stand-out season with the Cubs' "AAA" class farm club at Wichita; with the Aeros he was 11-4 with a 2.94 ERA and led the American Association with fewest walks-per-innings-pitched, 23 in 129 innings. One note about Lamp's major league debut: he singled in his first 2 at-bats in the National League. In 1978, Dennis owned the lowest ERA of any Cub starter and his season was capped by the one-hit effort against San Diego June 9 at Wrigley Field; on 4 occasions during the '78 season, the Cubs were shut-out when Dennis was the starting pitcher. In his 4½ seasons in the minor leagues, Lamp was named to all-star teams twice, in 1973 in the Midwest League, and again in 1977 in the American Association.

MISCELLANEOUS - A California native, Dennis was a standout baseball and basketball player at St. John Bosco High School in Bellflower, CA. As a senior, he won 13 of 15 decisions, and struck-out 127 batters in 94 innings. As a youngster, he participated in Little League, Pony League, Colt League, and American Legion baseball programs. Dennis is also an excellent mimic, a talent he uses to entertain teammates.

In 1971, White Sox pitcher Wilbur Wood made 14 starts with only two days rest, winning 8 of those games and losing only 4; he tossed 11 complete games of those 14 and his ERA was 1.86 over that span.

On May 9, 1975, pitcher Jim Kaat set a new White Sox record when he won his 12th consecutive game; Kaat started the streak Sept. 4, 1974. It surpassed the previous club record of 11 straight, originally established by John D. Rigney in 1939 and equalled by Gary Peters in 1963.

RUDY KARL LAW #11

POSITION:	Outfielder
AGE:	26
BORN:	Waco, TX 10/7/56
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-1, 165
BATS/THROWS:	Left/Left
RESIDENCE:	Los Angeles, CA
FAMILY:	Married (Evelyn)
ACQUIRED:	From Los Angeles, in exchange for pitcher Burt Geiger and outfielder Cecil Espy, March 30, 1982.

1982 SEASON - Employed primarily as a utility outfielder the first half of the year, Rudy earned the starting center field and lead-off slot July 1, and was nothing short of sensational in that role. He led the Sox in batting (.318) and stolen bases (36) and tied for 2nd on the club with 8 triples. In addition, his .362 on-base percentage was 3rd on the club. Rudy stole 18 consecutive bases without getting caught from June 16 to August 30, and his bat positively sizzled during the second half of 1982 as he hit .328 to lead the club by a wide margin. Law hit his first American League homer May 8th in Detroit to help the Sox to a 7-4 win, and at Tiger Stadium July 21, he went 3-for-7 with 2 doubles and 2 RBI's to lead the Sox to a 9-3 victory. Law recorded the team's '82 season high for runs scored in one game, when he crossed homeplate 4 times in the Seattle Kingdome Sept. 23.

CAREER - Rudy spent the entire 1981 season with the Albuquerque (NM) Dukes, the Dodgers "AAA" farm club, where he was the sparkplug of the team, batting .335 for the year, and stealing 56 bases. He had a 15-game batting streak for the Dukes that year, and had 9 3-hit games, including the Pacific Coast League championship game vs. Tacoma September 6. Law made his major league debut with the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1980, opening the season with them. He hit .341 in spring training that year, and .329 in the month of April for the Dodgers. It looked like Rudy might be a long-time Dodger fixture, but in mid-season he suffered a batting slump and did not play regularly the 2nd half of the '80 season (although still setting a new Dodger rookie record for stolen bases, with 40). Law made his big league debut with the Dodgers in September of 1978, after batting .312 for the Dukes, appearing in his first major league game Sept. 12 vs. San Francisco. And here's one for the books: Rudy picked-up his first 3 major league hits in the same game, Sept. 28, 1978 vs. Cincinnati.

MISCELLANEOUS - Passed over in the June, 1975 Free Agent Draft by every major league organization, Rudy was signed as a free agent by the Dodgers late that summer. He hit .300 and stole 24 bases his senior year at Ravenswood High School in East Palo Alto, CA. Rudy's boyhood hero was Willie Davis (Law wore #3 with the Dodgers, Davis' old number). Prior to Law setting the Dodger rookie record with 40 stolen bases, the record was held by Dave Lopes (36, 1973).

VANCE AARON LAW #5

POSITION: Infielder

AGE: 26, turns 27, Oct. 1

BORN: Boise, ID 10/1/56

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-2, 185

BATS/THROWS: Right/Right

RESIDENCE: Provo, UT

FAMILY: Married (Sharon), 2 children (Timothy, b 11/6/78, Natalie, b 7/10/82).

ACQUIRED: From Pittsburgh, in exchange for pitchers Ross Baumgarten and Claude "Butch" Edge, March 21, 1982.

1982 SEASON - An 11th hour acquisition last spring training, Vance Law was the Sox' regular shortstop by the midway point of the '82 season. He had appeared in only 35 games by the All-Star break, mostly as a late-inning defensive replacement at 2nd base, 3rd, or shortstop, or as a pinch hitter. However, a combination of a good performance, and some continuing defensive woes saw him promoted to the everyday line-up by July 7th, and in the 2nd half of the season he appeared in 79 of the Sox final 80 games. He hit .273 and drove in 45 runs during the 2nd half, the 3rd best batting average on the club after the All-Star break. In a 10-day period from Aug. 7-16, Vance drove in 10 runs in 9 games; in addition, he had a pair of 7-game hitting streaks (July 23-29, Aug. 10-16) and June 26, he hit his first major league home run, off veteran Gaylord Perry, in Seattle. Vance especially liked Comiskey Park in which to hit: he batted .314 with a pair of homers and 22 RBI's. Defensively, Vance had some rough sledding in mid-season when he sometimes played 2nd base, 3rd base, and shortstop in the same game. But once installed regularly at shortstop, he settled in, and made only 3 miscues in his final 31 games of the season.

CAREER - Vance opened the 1981 season with the Pirates, and moved into the starting line-up when Phil Garner was sidelined with a shoulder injury, but he struggled with the bat, hitting only .156 (7-for-45) when he was optioned down to Portland for the remainder of '81 on May 11. With the Portland Beavers he batted .277 the rest of the way. He made his major league debut June 1, 1980 with the Pittsburgh Pirates, and collected a double off Tom Hausman of the Mets in his first game. Signed to his first pro contract in 1978, he made it to "AAA" the very next season, hitting .310 in 131 games for Portland.

MISCELLANEOUS - Vance is the 3rd son of former Pittsburgh "Cy Young Award" winning pitcher Vern Law, who is the Sox' pitching coach at their "AAA" affiliate, the Denver Bears. Both Vance and his father are active in the Mormon Church (Vern is an elder in the Mormon Church). The "V's" have it in the Law family: Vance's mother's name is VaNita, and his 4 brothers are Veldon, Veryl, Vaughn, and Varlin, while his sister's name is VaLynda. Oh yes, the family used to have a pooch named Victor.

RONALD (RON) LeFLORE #8

POSITION:	Outfielder
AGE:	34, turns 35 June 16
BORN:	Detroit, MI 6/16/48
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-0, 200
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Sarasota, FL
FAMILY:	Married (Sara), 2 children (Ronald Jr., b 10/22/80, and Georgia Elizabeth, b 12/22/81)
ACQUIRED:	Selected #11 by White Sox in November, 1980 Re-Entry Draft

1982 SEASON - The year 1982 is not one that Ron LeFlore will remember with any relish. He began the sason as the Sox' regular center fielder, and in the first half of the year hit .290 in 68 games, with 4 home runs, 22 RBI's, and a club-leading 23 stolen bases. April 27th at Milwaukee County Stadium he hit the first grandslam home run of his career (off Jim Slaton) to lead the Sox to an 11-2 win over the Brewers. And May 7th at Tiger Stadium, he swiped 3 bases in one game. However, defensive lapses (he had 8 errors by mid-season) created problems for him, and he opened the 2nd half of the season being platooned with Rudy Law. By mid-August, he was being used only as a pinch runner or pinch hitter, and made only one start after August 18. He appeared in just 33 games the second half, including only one in September. Ron's troubles began right after the All-Star break, Sunday, July 18, when he arrived late for a game at Milwaukee County Stadium and was subsequently suspended 3 days without pay. The season culminated unhappily for LeFlore when he was arrested by police Sept. 30 at his Chicago apartment on charges of unlawful possession of a controlled substance and unregistered firearms. The outcome of those charges is not expected to be finalized until sometime this summer. Oct. 1, he was suspended for the final 3 games of the season, in the wake of those charges.

CAREER - LeFlore's first season with the White Sox was 1981, and although his batting average fell off, he swiped 36 bases in the shortened season to finish 3rd in the American League in that department. That total was also the most thefts by a Sox runner in 15 seasons (outfielder Tommie Agee stole 44 bases for the Sox in 1966). Ron spent the entire '81 season in left field, returning to center in 1982 following the departure of Chet Lemon to Detroit. Ron is the only player in major league history to lead both leagues in stolen bases for a season; in 1980 he swiped 97 bases in 116 attempts for the Montreal Expos, and he stole 68 bases for the Detroit Tigers in 1978 to lead the American League that season. In order to win the base-stealing title in the National League in '80, Ron had to steal 2 bases on the final day of the season to edge out Pittsburgh's Omar Moreno, who had 96 for the year. Ron goes into the 1983 season only 56 stolen bases behind the White Sox' all-time leader in that department, Luis Aparicio (506). LeFlore came into his own as a star in 1976 when he scored 93 runs and stole 58 bases and was elected to the American League All-Star Team. He also put together a 30-game hitting streak in '76, the longest streak in the A.L. in 26 years prior to that season, and the longest streak in Detroit in 42 years.

MISCELLANEOUS - The LeFlores suffered a tragedy Jan. 16, 1983 when their infant son, John Christopher, died of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome; he had been born Nov. 28, 1982. The Ron LeFlore story is well-known by this time: he did not play baseball in high school, but learned to play in a recreational program at Southern Michigan Prison (Jackson, MI). His abilities came to the attention of the Detroit Tigers, who signed him to a pro contract July 2, 1973. He went from prison to a Detroit farm club, and played in only 134 minor league games before making his major league debut July 31, 1974. Ron and Detroit sportswriter Jim Hawkins collaborated on a book about his prison experience titled "Break-Out," which was published in 1978. His story was also the subject of a made-for-television movie.

1982 SEASON - Once again in 1982 the Sox offense was keyed around Greg Luzinski, and he responded. "The Bull" turned-in one of the better years of his stellar career. He batted .292, 3rd on the club among the regulars, 27 points better than 1981, and his best one-season average since 1977 (when he batted .309). He was among the team leaders in almost every offensive department: he led the Sox in on-base percentage (.391), the 6th best percentage in the American League, and walks (89), which tied him for 6th in the A.L. In addition, he was 4th on the club in runs Lu Blue holds the all-time Chicago White Sox record for most times reached first base safely in one season. In 1931, in 155 games, he had 179 hits, 127 walks and was hit by a pitch 3 times for a total of 309 times reaching base. The major league record is 379 times by Babe Ruth in 1923.

scored (87), 3rd in home runs (18), and 2nd in RBI's. His RBI total was his best production since the '77 season with Philadelphia when he drove across 130. Luzinski started 159 games last year (all but 3), and established a whole raft of new team "DH" records, including: most starts (156), most at-bats (580), runs scored (87), doubles (37), and RBI's (102). "Bull" passed a couple of milestones during the '82 season: he clouted his 250th career homer May 26 at Comiskey Park (off Larry Gura of Kansas City), and collected his 1,500th career hit July 20 in Detroit (a single off Dan Petry of the Tigers). He finished the season with 262 career homers, and that places him 11th on the all-time home run list among batters active at the end of the '82 season. In that May 26 game that he hit his 250th career homer, Luzinski later hit a 2nd homer off Gura to drive-in a total of 6 runs in the game, a season high for the Sox. He also had a 5-RBI day, that Sept. 19 at Comiskey Park vs. Oakland. His 102 RBI season total, combined with Harold Baines' 105 RBI's, gave the White Sox 2 100-plus RBI producers on the same team for the first time in 46 years (in 1936, Zeke Bonura had 138 RBI's and Luke Appling 128). Greg was the White Sox "Player-of-the-Month" for May when he batted .361, with 6 homers and 31 RBI's in 27 games. "Bull" also finished the season leading the club in multiple-hit games (46), including 2 4-hit games, and 14 3-hit games. Greg enjoys complaining about the generous dimensions of Comiskey Park, but he batted .325, with 13 homers and 62 RBI's at home to lead all Sox batters in those departments in the "friendly expanses." "Bull" also found left-handers to his liking in '82; he hit .321, with 6 homers, and 34 RBI's off southpaws last year.

CAREER - For Chicago born-and-bred Greg Luzinski, 1981 was a homecoming. One of the mainstays of the Philadelphia offense for 8 seasons, his contract was purchased by the Sox late in the spring training of 1981 as an early step in the re-making of the team. Used exclusively as a designated hitter by the White Sox in 1981, Luzinski delivered by having his best season since 1978; he led the Southsiders in 5 different offensive categories, more than any other Sox batter: home runs (21), RBI's (62), game-winning RBI's (11), runs (55), and walks (58), and his home run total set a new White Sox team record for homers by a "DH" in one season, eclipsing the old record of 20 established by Oscar Gamble in 1977. At season's end, he was named American League "DH of the Year" for leading all A.L. designated hitters in games (103), runs (55), total bases (180), homers (21), and game-winning RBI's (11). His home run total was second best in the league, and his GW-RBI total tied for 4th best in the A.L. He was also named "Comeback Player of the Year" by U.P.I. In his final season with Philadelphia, Luzinski experienced a roller-coaster year: he hit a game-winning 3-run homer in his very first at-bat of the season, and pounded-out 8 homers (and drove-in 18 runs) in May; he injured his right knee sliding into second base July 5 at St. Louis, and underwent corrective surgery July 28. He was reactivated Aug. 24 after missing 45 games, then came back to homer in the first game of the National League championship series and drive-in the winning run in the 4th game with a pinch double. In 1978, "Bull" received more votes than any other player to win a starting spot in the National League All-Star Team. He hit safely in 13 consecutive National League CS games before going hitless in game #3 of the series in 1980. His best one-game RBI performance occurred June 11, 1977 when he drove-in 7 runs vs. Atlanta. Greg owns more grandslam home runs than any other Sox batter; he has hit 5 in his career, his last Aug. 5, 1979 against Pittsburgh (off Bert Blyleven). He missed 74 games during the 1974 season following surgery to repair torn ligaments in his right knee.

MISCELLANEOUS - Reared in northwest suburban Prospect Hts., Greg starred in football, as well as baseball, at Notre Dame High School in Niles, Il. One of the most sought-after football prospects in the Midwest, he received 150 football scholarship offers his senior year in high school and appeared headed for the University of Kansas before signing with Philadelphia. He purchases $20,000 in tickets each season for underprivileged children in a section at Comiskey Park known as the "Bull Ring" (He began the program several years ago in Philadelphia).

RANDY CARL MARTZ #33

POSITION: Pitcher

AGE: 26, turns 27 May 28

BORN: Harrisburg, PA 5/28/56

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-4, 215

BATS/THROWS: Left/Right

RESIDENCE: Piedmont, SC

FAMILY: Single

ACQUIRED: From Chicago Cubs, with pitcher Dick Tidrow and infielders Scott Fletcher and Pat Tabler, in exchange for pitchers Steve Trout and Warren Brusstar, Jan. 26, 1983.

1982 SEASON - After making 3 of his first 4 appearances of the '82 season out of the bullpen, Randy moved into the Chicago Cubs' starting rotation for the remainder of the campaign. His 11-10 season record represented the best winning percentage of any Cubs starting pitcher (.524), and he enjoyed a superb final 2 months, posting a 7-3 record in his last 11 starts of the year. He put together the best one-game performance of his career, to date, last Aug. 5 at Wrigley Field, when he beat the New York Mets 5-1 on a

2-hitter. He faced only 29 batters in that game for his only complete game of the season. Martz spent time on the Disabled List in late June after suffering a strain of the right shoulder, but he had a pair of 3-game winning streaks during the year, one early in the season, one late in August.

CAREER - Randy made his major league debut with the Cubs in September of 1980 after 4 seasons of minor league ball, and has been in the majors ever since. He lost his big league debut Sept. 6, 1980 to Cincinnati. He recorded his first major league victory later that same month (Sept. 27) when he and teammate Dick Tidrow combined to beat Pittsburgh 2-1. In 1981, he started the year in the bullpen, and allowed only one earned run in his first 28.1 innings of relief, and then divided the remainder of the season between the bullpen and the starting rubber. He wound-up the '81 campaign with a 0.90 ERA in relief appearances (4 earned runs in 39.2 innings). He notched the first complete game of his big league career (and first on the Cubs' staff that season) May 21, 1981, beating Cincinnati 2-1. Randy spent approximately 2 seasons at the "AAA" level with Wichita of the American Association, where he tied the league lead in starts (26) in '79. He was 8-6 with the Aeros in '80 when he was called-up to the parent club. He was named to the Texas League All-Star Team in 1978, when he finished 4th in the league with a 3.12 ERA.

MISCELLANEOUS - Martz attended the University of South Carolina on a football scholarship, and did not play baseball until his junior year. That season (1977), he posted a 14-0 record in leading the Gamecocks to 2nd place in the College World Series. His ERA for the season was 1.98. Randy received a long list of honors following that season, including "College Player of the Year" and All-American awards. He played baseball, basketball and football for Upper Dauphin High School in Elizabeth, PA.

MICHAEL LEE MORSE #28

POSITION: Infielder
AGE: 20, turns 21 March 28
BORN: Miami, FL 3/28/62
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 5-11, 155
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Plantation, FL
FAMILY: Single
ACQUIRED: Selected in 8th round, 1980 June Free Agent Draft.

1982 SEASON - Mike Morse led this past winter's Florida Instructional League with a .317 batting average in 41 games (38-for-120), with 3 home runs and 14 RBI's. And, that was a good sign for the White Sox. Mike was all set to be the everyday shortstop for the Sox' team in the "AA" class Eastern League, the Glens Falls (N.Y.) Sox, but a shoulder injury limited his play to 62 games. A smooth, steady fielder he worked at both shortstop and 3rd base in the Instructional League, and appears to have a future in the game.

CAREER - Morse has played just 3 seasons of pro ball. During an injury-free 1981 season at the "A" level, he batted .262 for the Appleton (WI.) Foxes of the Midwest League with 48 RBI's. He has yet to make his major league debut.

MISCELLANEOUS - One of 2 players in the Sox' 1983 spring training camp from Plantation, FL (non-roster pitcher John Hardy is the other), this is Morse' first spring training with the parent club. He is a graduate of South Plantation (FL) High School where he was "MVP" of his prep team in 1980, his senior year, after batting .431. He was also named to the Broward County All-Conference Team that season.

FRANCIS JOSEPH (FRAN) MULLINS #26

POSITION: Infielder
AGE: 25, turns 26 May 14
BORN: Oakland, CA 5/14/57
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-0, 182
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Oakland
FAMILY: Married (Catherine)
ACQUIRED: Selected #3 by White Sox in June, 1979 Free Agent Draft

1982 SEASON - The regular shortstop for the White Sox "AAA" farm club, at Edmonton (CAN.), Fran Mullins turned in a respectable season, batting .282 to finish 6th in that department among club regulars. In addition, he tied for 4th on the club with 14 homers. He set personal one-season highs with his 14 homers and 57 RBI's, and his .282 batting average, the 2nd best of his pro career, improved by 34 points an injury-plagued 1981 season.

CAREER - For Fran Mullins, 1981 was only half a season. Struck on the right wrist by a pitch in the final days of spring training, he suffered a chip fracture, and was sidelined for more than 6 weeks. Scheduled to be the starting shortstop for the Edmonton Trappers, the White Sox' top farm club, he didn't get to see any action until late May. Fran made his major league debut with the White Sox in 1980, only his 2nd year as a pro.

MISCELLANEOUS - Fran graduated from the University of Santa Clara in 1979 after an all-star baseball career there. Named MVP of his college team in his sophomore year, he was originally drafted by Detroit in June of 1978 (the same draft in which the Tigers selected Kirk Gibson). Mullins received his degree in accounting, and during the off-season works for Price, Waterhouse in San Jose. Fran was an all-conference baseball and basketball player at St. Mary's High School (Berkley, CA).

STEPHEN ANDREW (STEVE) MURA #43

POSITION:	Pitcher
AGE:	28
BORN:	New Orleans, LA 2/12/55
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-2, 190
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Metairie, LA
FAMILY:	Married (Seana)
ACQUIRED:	From St. Louis, in Compensation Pool Draft, Jan. 26, 1983.

1982 SEASON - For Steve Mura, last winter must have been just as confusing as the previous season. The White Sox selected New York Yankee pitcher Rudy May January 20, 1983 in the Compensation Pool Draft (The Sox were entitled to a pick because of the signing of free agent outfielder Steve Kemp by the Yankees in December of 1982.) Steve noted the transaction with passing interest at his home in Metairie, LA, and that was that, or so he thought. However, 5 days later, it was ruled that May should have been protected by the Yankees, and therefore, was an ineligible selection. Then, Jan. 26, Steve learned he was a member of the White Sox. The 1982 season itself had to be a bit confusing to Mura as well. A regular member of the Cardinals starting rotation for their championship season, he ranked 2nd on the Cardinal staff in complete games (7), a personal career high, while chalking-up career one-season marks in wins (12), starts (30), and innings (184.1) as well. In spite of those numbers, however, he was used sparingly in September and did not make an appearance in either the Championship Series or the World Series.

CAREER - Prior to 1982, Mura spent his entire professional career in the San Diego Padres organization, coming to the Cardinals Dec. 10, 1981 in exchange for outfielder Sixto Lezcano and players to be named later on both sides. The '81 season started for Steve with a 10-inning no-decision on Opening Day against San Francisco, and went downhill from there. He finally wound-up leading the National League in losses that year (14). He began the 1980 season in the San Diego bullpen and made 14 consecutive relief appearances before being promoted to the starting rotation for the rest of the way. He pitched his first big league complete game July 14, 1980, a 6-3, 6-hit win over the Dodgers. Then, in his last appearance of the year, October 3, he fired a 3-hitter at the San Francisco Giants at Candlestick Park to post his first major league shutout. Elbow problems (he did not pitch between May 16 and June 29) curtailed his work during 1979, his first full season in the majors. He made his major league debut in 1978, after just 3 seasons in the minor leagues.

MISCELLANEOUS - Steve and Seana are newlyweds; they were married Dec. 11, 1982. Mura attended Tulane University in his hometown of New Orleans, where he had an outstanding collegiate career. He lettered in baseball and basketball at Redemptorist High School in New Orleans.

AGE: 27, turns 28 June 6
BORN: Pomona, CA 6/6/55
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-4, 200
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: Dittmer, MD

ACQUIRED: Signed as free agent with Appleton June 25, 1977.

1982 SEASON - Along with having an outstanding season as the everyday first baseman for the Sox "AAA" affiliate at Edmonton (CAN.), Chris Nyman played a vital role for the Sox when Tom Paciorek was sidelined by injuries during the second half. Nyman appeared in 118 games for the Trappers in between trips to Chicago, and wound-up 7th in the Pacific Coast League with a .335 average. In addition, his 92 RBI's for Edmonton were the 2nd best total on the club. Both his batting average and RBI totals were the best one-season efforts of his young pro career. Chris made 2 trips to the parent club during the '82 season: his contract was purchased July 27 from Edmonton and he was with the Sox until being optioned out Aug. 11, and then he was re-called Aug. 28 for the remainder of the season when Paciorek had his 2nd bout with his troublesome hamstrings. Nyman appeared in a total of 28 games for the Sox, including 19 starts at first base. He recorded the first major league hit of his career July 28 in his big league debut; the hit came off Scott McGregor at Baltimore Memorial Stadium. He then collected his first GWRBI Sept. 4 at Comskey Park, against Texas in a 4-0 win. Chris finished the '82 season on a hot note for the Sox, collecting 10 hits in his last 26 at-bats (.385).

CAREER - Chris enjoyed a superb season at Edmonton (AAA-Pacific Coast League) in 1981 as the Trappers' everyday first baseman. Chris topped the Trappers in RBI's (91) last season, finished second on the team in doubles with 24, and flirted with a .300 year before dipping to .296 at season's end. In addition, he rapped-out 16 home runs for his third straight double-digit power production. Chris has had two consecutive years of success on the basepaths, swiping 27 bases in 33 attempts last year, after 29 steals the previous season.

MISCELLANEOUS - Chris is the younger brother of Nyls Nyman, a former outfielder in the White Sox organaization. Chris was a member of the Arizona State University 1977 NCAA College World Series champions, after a standout baseball career at Cordova High School in Rancho Cordova, CA.

THOMAS MARIAN (TOM) PACIOREK #44

POSITION:	First baseman-Outfielder
AGE:	36
BORN:	Detroit, MI 11/2/46
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-4, 210
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Stone Mountain, GA
FAMILY:	Married (Chris), 5 children (Kimberly, b 10/4/69; Shannon, b 4/28/71; Tom Jr., b 1/4/76; Kattie, b 5/9/77; Andy, b 5/13/79).

ACQUIRED: From Seattle in exchange for catcher Jim Essian, infielder Todd Cruz, and outfielder Rod Allen, Dec. 11, 1981.

1982 SEASON - In spite of fighting bothersome hamstring problems most of the year, Tom Paciorek hit .312, the second season in a row he hit over .300 (He hit .312 with Seattle in 1981) and proved to be an integral part of the Sox explosive offense. He burst out of the starting gate by hitting safely in his first 7 games of the year, collecting 15 hits in his first 32 at-bats, including 2 GWRBI's the first week. The highlight of that early surge was a game-winning 3-run homer off Bob Stanley at Fenway Park. Two bouts with bothersome hamstrings saw him land on the Disabled List twice during the 2nd half of the season (July 26-Aug. 11, and Aug. 28-Sept. 12) limiting him to only 32 games the 2nd half, but he took full advantage of those opportunities. He hit .317 the 2nd half of the year, with 5 homers and 18 RBI's. One of his biggest games after the All-Star break came July 21 at Tiger Stadium when he clouted 4 hits, including a pair of homers, and drove-in 3 runs, to lead the Sox to a 9-3 win. Tom's .490 slugging percentage led the White Sox, and his .366 on-base percentage was 2nd best on the club. One oddity: he obviously preferred the road to Comiskey Park in his first season with the Sox—every one of his 11 home runs was hit on the road. He also batted .338 on the road this past year with 38 RBI's. He was the Sox' "Player-of-the-Month" for July, batting a sizzling .322, wth 15 RBI's and 5 homers in 16 games.

CAREER - 1981 was the finest season of Paciorek's major league career. He was the 2nd best hitter in the American League in '81, batting .326 and collecting 13 GWRBI (also 2nd best in the league). He also ranked 3rd in the A.L. in doubles (28) and total bases (206). His .326 season batting average set an all-time Seattle Mariner season record, and as a result, he was named Seattle's "Most Valuable Player" by the Seattle chapter of the BBWA. In 1981, Tom also made his first appearance on the American League All-Star team, delivering a pinch single in his only trip to the plate. Selected in the 5th round of the June, 1968 Free Agent Draft by the Los Angeles Dodgers, Paciorek spent 8 seasons in the Dodger organization, and was named "Minor League Player-of-the-Year" by The Sporting News after batting .307 and slamming 27 home runs with 107 RBI's for the Dodgers' "AAA" class team at Albuquerque, New Mexico in 1971. He made his major league debut with the Dodgers in 1970, and after brief appearances with the big club in 1970 and '71, he made it to the major leagues to stay in 1973. He was traded to the Atlanta Braves in November of 1975 as part of a 6-player deal, hitting .290 for the Braves in 1976. Signed by Seattle part way through the 1978 season, he batted .299 in 70 games for the Mariners that season, and despite being selected by 3 teams in the Re-Entry Draft that fall, returned to Seattle, where he hit .287 in 1979.

MISCELLANEOUS - Not only a 2-time All-American on the University of Houston's baseball team, Paciorek also earned honorable mention All-

American honors as a defensive back for Houston's football team. As a result, he was drafted by the Miami Dolphins on the 9th round of the 1968 American Football League draft. Although he wore uniform #14 most of his major league baseball career, Tom chose to wear #44 with the White Sox, his college football number. Tom is not the only athlete in his family; brother Mike played in the Dodgers' system, brother Jim was a star outfielder at the University of Michigan and is now in the Milwaukee Brewers' organization, and borther John was a member of Houston Astros' system. In fact, Tom's brother, John, is involved in one of the great trivia notes of all time: John appeared in one major league game and went 3-for-3 to own the best perfect batting average of anyone who has ever appeared in a game in the big leagues. Sept. 29, 1963, the final day of that season, John was one of 7 rookies in the starting line-up of the Houston Colt 45's (later the Astros). He went 3-for-3, walked twice, and scored 4 runs in a 13-4 win over the Mets. A congenital back problem forced him to retire early in the 1964 season, without ever seeing the major leagues again.

WARD'S ROOKIE SEASON

Pete Ward of the Chicago White Sox claims this one—his extra base hits his rookie season in the majors (1963)—were exactly the same as he had during his final season in the minors (1962). With the White Sox in 1963, Ward had 34 doubles, 6 triples and 22 home runs; he had the identical totals with Rochester of the International League in 1962.

The longest hitting streak in the American League in 1963 was accomplished by Chicago White Sox rookie, Pete Ward. The lefthanded hitting third baseman of the Sox hit in 18 straight games from June 7 thru June 24, amassing a mark of .382 on 26 hits in 68 times to bat.

JAMES GERARD (JIM) SIWY #54

POSITION:	Pitcher
AGE:	24, turns 25 Sept. 20
BORN:	Central Falls, RI 9/20/58
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-4, 200
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Central Falls, RI
FAMILY:	Single
ACQUIRED:	Signed as a free agent January 16, 1980

1982 SEASON - Jim Siwy has only been in pro ball for 2 seasons, but he's been a winner for every Sox farm team he's been a member of. He owns a 28-12 record in his 3 minor league stops—that's a .700 won-loss percentage. As a regular member of the starting rotation for the Sox "AAA" club at Edmonton (CAN.), Jim chalked-up 12 wins, 2nd best on the club, while finishing 2nd in starts (25) and tying for most complete games (8). So impressive was his performance for the Trappers, the White Sox purchased his contract from Edmonton Aug. 19 and brought him to Chicago. He made 2 appearances for the parent club before being optioned back to the Trappers Aug. 24: he made his major league debut in relief Aug. 20 at Kansas City, and his first major league start Aug. 23 at Cleveland.

CAREER - Siwy's 16 wins in 1981 were the most by any pitcher in the White Sox organization, including the major league club. His first professional team was the Appleton (WI.) Foxes of the "A" class Midwest League, but a perfect 5-0 record and a 1.96 ERA after eight starts earned him a promotion to Glens Falls. The tall right-hander was a welcome addition to the GlenSox staff, topping the team in complete games (8), placing second in winning percentage (.733), and tying for second in wins with 11. He displayed excellent control in 1981, walking only 31 batters in 164 innings.

MISCELLANEOUS - One of a handful of professional players from the tiny state of Rhode Island, he also hails from the same hometown as White Sox Executive Vice President/General Manager Roland Hemond: Central Falls. Jim graduated from Central Falls High School in 1976 after lettering in baseball, basketball and cross-country. He attended Bristol Community College one year, and Rhode Island College one year, recording a 9-3 mark at Rhode Island College to lead them to the NCAA Division III College World Series title in 1979.

Chicago White Sox pitching great "Big" Ed Walsh holds the American League record for most wins against one club in a single season; in 1908, Walsh posted a 9-0 mark against Boston and he also had a 9-1 record against New York.

JOEL PATRICK (JOEL) SKINNER #12

POSITION: Catcher
AGE: 22
BORN: San Diego, CA 2/21/61
HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-4, 198
BATS/THROWS: Right/Right
RESIDENCE: San Diego
FAMILY: Married (Jennifer)
ACQUIRED: Selected from Pittsburgh in compensation pool draft February 2, 1982

1982 SEASON - Joel Skinner was the regular catcher for the Glens Falls (N.Y.) White Sox in the "AA" class Eastern League in 1982, his 3rd season in pro ball, his first at the "AA" level. In a reference to Joel and another young catcher in the Sox organization, Ron Karkovice, a veteran baseball scout said "The White Sox may have the best 2 catching prospects in pro ball at the moment." Already possessing the poise and defensive skills to acquit himself at the major league level, Joel is lacking only experience and some work on offense before he'll be breathing down the neck of the parent club's current catching corps. He appeared in 120 games last season, driving-in 65 runs, and was named to the Eastern League All-Star Team. Following the season, he was rated the top catcher at the "AA" level last year by BASEBALL AMERICA Magazine, and the top major league prospect in the entire Eastern League.

CAREER - The talented youngster became a member of the White Sox organization Feb. 2, 1982 when the White Sox selected him over some 2,000 other professional players in the first Compensation Draft ever held. When former Sox relief pitcher Ed Farmer was signed by the Philadelphia Phillies in January of 1982, he was the first "Type A" free agent to sign a contract, thus giving the Sox a chance to make baseball history. In 1981, his second season in pro ball, Joel was the All-Star catcher in the South Atlantic League, after batting .266 for Greenwood (SC) and driving-in 63 runs in 117 games.

MISCELLANEOUS - The youngest of 4 brothers, Joel is the son of former big league player and manager Bob Skinner (Bob was an outfielder). Born and reared in the San Diego area, Joel played prep baseball at Mission Bay High School, then attended Mesa Junior College in San Diego, He was the Pittsburgh Pirates' 34th round selection in the June, 1979, Free Agent Draft. He is described as a "Carlton Fisk look-alike."

FOX CONSECUTIVE GAME STREAK

Nelson Fox was one of the most durable players in White Sox history; from Sept. 11, 1953, until Sept. 4, 1960, the great little second baseman missed only one game out of 1,073 contests. Fox first ran off a streak of 274 consecutive games, missed the game on Aug. 6, 1955, then began another streak of 798 games the next day.

MICHAEL LYNN (MIKE) SQUIRES #25

POSITION:	Infielder
AGE:	30, turns 31 March 5
BORN:	Kalamazoo, MI 3/5/52
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	5-11, 190
BATS/THROWS:	Left/Left
RESIDENCE:	Crete, IL
FAMILY:	Married (Maureen), 2 daughters (Lisa, b 11/9/76; Connie, b 3/2/78)
ACQUIRED:	Selected #18 by White Sox in June, 1973 Free Agent Draft

1982 SEASON - Every year, Mike Squires comes off the White Sox bench to make a valuable contribution to the team, and 1982 was no exception. He was the Sox "super sub" at first base when Tom Paciorek was forced to go on the Disabled List twice in the 2nd half of the season. He continues to be among the toughest batters in the American League to strike out, and again in 1982—as in most of his career—his walk total was greater than his strikeout total. In his big league career, Mike has fanned only 90 times in 1,345 at-bats; that's only once every 15 times at bat. Of his 116 games in '82, Mike was a starter in 42 of them, until he strained a left hamstring in mid-September. In his first start of the year, April 25 at Baltimore, Squires collected 3 hits in 4 at bats, one of 2 3-hit games he had in '82. Mike, who has also worked extensively with Sox batting guru Charley Lau, homered off California's Mike Witt Sept. 13, his first homer since Aug. 19, 1980 (vs. Cleveland). Mike was involved in one of the most "heads up" plays of the year for the Sox; Sept. 13 at Comiskey Park he scored from 3rd base on a foul pop-up off the bat of Rudy Law, to California 3rd baseman Doug DeCinces in what amounted to a sacrifice fly to an infielder.

CAREER - Anyone who has watched the White Sox the last few years knows it, but it took a little time for the rest of the baseball world to realize it, and the result was that Mike Squires was named winner of the "Gold Glove" at the end of the 1981 season as the best fielding first baseman in the American League. He committed only 6 errors in 793 total chances for a .992 fielding average. In addition, Mike completed a spectacular double play against the Yankees in Yankee Stadium Aug. 19 in the 8th inning to preserve a 6-5 Sox win. In that play, New York batter Rick Cerone hit a potential double play grounder to shortstop Bill Almon; Bill tossed the ball to second baseman Tony Bernazard who forced the runner from first at second for out number one, but Bernazard's relay to Squires at first was wide of the mark; Mike dashed back toward the wall, fielded the errant throw off the wall, and fired the ball to home plate to cut down Yankee runner Reggie Jackson, who was trying to score the tying run from second base, for the final out of the inning. In 1980, he had his best season batting average in his major league career to date (.283), while committing only 5 errors in 977 total chances for a .995 fielding percentage, 3rd best in the American League behind only Bruce Bochte (.996) of Seattle and Cecil Cooper (.997) of Milwaukee. In 1980, he did not commit his first error until Aug. 12, his 83rd game of the season. Squires established himself as a major leaguer in 1979, batting .264 for the season (.279 the second half) and finishing 3rd on the club with 15 stolen bases. In 1978, Squires batted .312 for the Iowa Oaks, the Sox "AAA" farm club, and set a club record by hitting safely in 33 consecutive games. In 1976 at Iowa, Mike went 76 straight games without an error and led all American Association first basemen in fielding. He was a member of the Southern League All-Star Team in both 1974 and '75; in '74 he set a league fielding record with a .996 percentage, and in '75 he batted .304 for Knoxville to be named "MVP" of the league. In 10 seasons of professional baseball, Mike has committed an average of only 2.1 errors a season, or only one error every 25.2 games.

MISCELLANEOUS - Also known as "Spanky," Mike is a candidate for Ripley's "Believe It or Not;" he caught in 2 games for the Sox in 1980 (May 4, 7), to become the first left-handed catcher to perform in the majors since Dale Long caught 2 games for the Chicago Cubs in 1958. Squires hopes to have the opportunity to manage after his playing career, and Manager Tony La Russa says of Mike, "He has a good head for the game, that's an asset." Squires attended Kalamazoo (MI) Valley Community College and Western Michigan University, playing baseball all 4 years, and was captain of his football and baseball teams at Kalamazoo (MI) Central High School. Mike's dad, Lynn, is a scout in the White Sox organization.

POSITION: Infielder

AGE: 25

BORN: Hamilton, OH 2/2/58

HEIGHT/WEIGHT: 6-2, 198

BATS/THROWS: Right/Right

RESIDENCE: Cincinnati, OH

FAMILY: Married (Susan), a son (Patrick Tyler, b 12/1/82)

ACQUIRED: From Chicago Cubs, with infielder Scott Fletcher and pitchers Dick Tidrow and Randy Martz, in exchange for pitchers Steve Trout and Warren Brusstar, Jan. 26, 1983.

1982 SEASON - Pat Tabler was the American Association's All-Star 3rd baseman last year after hitting .342 to finish 2nd in the league's batting race. He led the A.A. in triples (11), tied for 2nd in doubles (32), and finished 3rd in RBI's (105). On top of that, he also finished the year 2nd among league 3rd basemen in fielding percentage, putouts, assists, and total chances. Pat was called-up to the Cubs in September, where he batted .235 in 25 games. During the month, he put together a 7-game hitting streak and hit safely in 12 of 13 games.

CAREER - Tabler made his major league debut in 1981 after spending the middle of the year with the Iowa Oaks, the Cubs' "AAA" affiliate, playing mostly at 2nd base. He was obtained by the Cubs Aug. 19, 1981 from the New York Yankees, where he had been playing for the Yanks' top farm club at Columbus, OH. In 1980, he played at the "AA" level, at Nashville, where he hit .296 with 16 homers. He batted .300 at West Haven and .316 at Ft. Lauderdale in splitting the 1979 season between the 2 clubs. Pat was selected by the Yankees in the first round of the June, 1976, Free Agent Draft, the 16th player in the nation to be picked.

MISCELLANEOUS - A native of Cincinnati, it's not too difficult to understand why his baseball hero is Pete Rose. Pat graduated from McNicholas High School (Cincinnati) where he was both a basketball and baseball star. He was All-City, All-District, All-State, and All-American, along with being selected the city "MVP" and "Player-of-the-Year" in 1976. He played on 2 city championship teams. Also playing in his same prep conference in Cincinnati were new teammate Richard Dotson, and former teammate Leon Durham. Pat and his wife, Susan, are new parents; Patrick Tyler was born this past autumn.

RICHARD WILLIAMS (DICK) TIDROW #41

POSITION:	Pitcher
AGE:	35, turns 36 May 14
BORN:	San Francisco, CA 5/14/47
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-4, 213
BATS/THROWS:	Right/Right
RESIDENCE:	Kansas City, MO
FAMILY:	Married (Mary Jo), a son (Andrew, b 7/13/79).

ACQUIRED: From Chicago Cubs, with pitcher Randy Martz and infielders Pat Tabler and Scott Fletcher, in exchange for pitchers Steve Trout and Warren Brusstar, Jan. 26, 1983.

1982 SEASON - Dick Tidrow finished the '82 season with the best winning percentage of any pitcher on the Chicago Cubs' staff (.727, 8-3). From July 19 through the end of the season he appeared in 29 games, pitching shutout ball in 22 of those appearances. During that stretch, he pitched 42.2 innings, giving-up just 10 earned runs for a 2.11 ERA. From July 10 to Aug. 26, he pitched 23 innings in 15 relief stints, allowing a total of only 2 earned runs for a 0.78 ERA. He only walked 19 batters unintentionally all year in 103.2 innings. In fact, over the last 2 seasons, Dick has only allowed 34 batters a free ride to first base in 178 innings, that's less than 2 bases-on-balls (1.8) per 9 innings.

CAREER - An 11-year major league veteran, Tidrow is returning to the American League after nearly 4 seasons in the National League, all with the Cubs. He had been strictly a reliever with the Cubs. He has been a reliever most of his big league career, although he was a starter for 2 seasons with New York (1974, '78) and 2 seasons with Cleveland (1972, '73). In 1981 with the Cubs, Dick's 51 appearances led the team and ranked 4th overall in the National League. In 1980, he tied the Cubs' team record for appearances (84, established in 1965 by Ted Abernathy, leading the N.L. in that department). In May of 1981, Dick put together a string of 22 consecutive outs for the Cubs. Tidrow was acquired by the Cubs May 23, 1979 from the Yankees, in exchange for pitcher Ray Burris, and went on to record an 11-5 record, and led the team with 63 appearances. He was named National League "Player-of-the-Month" in July of '79 after posting a 5-0 record. He was 41-33 in 5-plus seasons with the Yankees, making World Series appearances with them in 1976, '77, and '78. Dick made the longest relief appearance of his career Aug. 25, 1976 when he faced the Minnesota Twins for 10.2 innings, allowing no runs on 4 hits. The game ultimately went 19 innings with the Yankees winning 5-4, but he did not receive credit for the victory. He was the winning pitcher in the first game ever played in the "new" Yankee Stadium, April 15, 1976. He broke into the majors in 1972 with the Cleveland Indians, and recorded a 2.77 ERA in 34 starts to be named American League "Rookie-of-the-Year" by THE SPORTING NEWS. He made a career high 40 starts for the Indians in 1973, then was traded to the Yanks April 26, 1974, along with first baseman Chris Chambliss and pitcher Cecil Upshaw, in exchange for pitchers Fritz Peterson, Tom Buskey, Steve Kline and Fred Beene. Dick spent 5 seasons in the minor leagues, the best of which was 1969 when he was 15-6 with a 2.65 ERA to be named to the California League All-Star Team and "Minor League Pitcher-of-the-Year."

MISCELLANEOUS - At Mt. Eden High School (Haywood, CA), Dick enjoyed an outstanding prep career, lettering in football, basketball, and baseball. He pitched a no-hitter on his 18th birthday, and once fanned 19 batters in a 7-inning high school game, and 22 in an American Legion game. He attended Chabot College, and won 12 games, 6 of them by shutouts, in 1967 to be named to the Golden Gate All-Conference team. He spent most of the 1968 season in the United States Marine Corps.

BORN:	Douglas, GA 10/6/59
HEIGHT/WEIGHT:	6-3, 205
BATS/THROWS:	Left/Right

FAMILY:	Married (Carman), a daughter (Kaycee, b 10/17/79)
ACQUIRED:	Selected from Philadelphia Phillies organization in Major League Draft Dec. 4, 1979

1982 SEASON - Greg Walker has played in the shadow of Ron Kittle the last couple of seasons, but many baseball experts agree he is about to blossom on his own. Greg led all White Sox hitters last spring training with a .524 mark (11-for-21) and kept up the torrid pace as the everyday first baseman for the Sox' "AAA" club, the Edmonton (CAN.) Trappers. He was hitting .463 (19-for-41) with 2 homers and 6 RBI's in the first 10 games of the season for the Trappers when he suffered a broken wrist of his glove arm (right) on a tag play at first base. The injury occurred April 22, and he returned to the Edmonton line-up 3 months later (July 23). He finished-up the '82 season at Edmonton, batting .350 in 35 games, and reported to the Sox' Instructional League camp in Sarasota to continue rehabilitating his wrist. At Comiskey Park in Chicago, first Tom Paciorek, then Mike Squires suffered injuries, and the unexpected call went out Sept. 15 for Greg to make his first trip to the major leagues, He made his major league debut Sept. 16 at Comiskey Park, and got a pinch single in his first major league at-bat. He came to the plate in 8 games during the last 2 weeks of the season, and got hits in 6 of those games, including his last 5 games in a row, thus currently holds a 5-game hitting streak in the major leagues going into the '83 season. Greg hit 2 homers and drove-in 7 runs in just 11 games for the Sox, batting .412 for them in his brief debut. He connected for his first major league home run Sept. 27 at Comiskey Park off Bob Stoddard of Seattle to lead the Sox to a 4-1 win, but the biggest hit of his young big league career came in game #1 of a twi-night doubleheader that same night vs. the Mariners. In the 9th inning of that game, he hit a bases-loaded double to drive-in 3 runs for the Sox.

CAREER - Walker was the everyday first baseman for the White Sox most successful farm club in 1981, the Glens Falls (NY) White Sox, who won both halves of the North Division in the "AA" Eastern League and posted a composite 94-52 record, 42 games over .500. And Greg was a big part of that impressive win total: he finished 3rd in the Eastern League in hitting (.321) while leading the league in runs scored (117), hits (163), doubles (33), and hitting 22 homers.

MISCELLANEOUS - Signed originally by the Philadelphia organization in 1977, he was acquired by the White Sox in December of 1979 via the Major League Draft. Greg starred in baseball and football at Coffee High School (Douglas).

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE WHITE SOX

The Chicago White Sox are a charter member of the American League. Charles Albert Comiskey—son of the first head of Chicago's City Council and itinerant pitcher, first baseman and manager—moved the St. Paul, MN franchise of the Western League to Chicago to play in 1900. The league was re-organized and re-named the "American League" in 1900, but was not recognized as a "major" league until the following year. Despite a howl of protest from the established National League team in Chicago, Comiskey adopted the name "White Stockings" for his new team. The National League club had been known as the "White Stockings" for many years, but had dropped the nickname several seasons earlier.

Comiskey's new franchise got off to an auspicious start in 1900, and again in 1901. The White Stockings won the league title in 1900 with an 82-53 record, and then came back to win the first "official" American League pennant in 1901 with an almost identical record (83-53). The first game ever played in the American League was in Chicago April 24, 1901, as the White Sox (as they were then called) defeated Cleveland 8-2 in a one-hour, 30-minute game in front of a reported 14,000 at the Sox' home grounds (then on 39th Street between Wentworth and Princeton, leased from the Chicago Cricket Club). The White Sox first manager was Clark Griffith, later to become owner of the Washington Senators.

SOX HAD MANY FIRSTS

There were many other interesting "firsts" by the White Sox in those early years: Herm McFarland and "Dummy" Hoy hit grandslam home runs in the same game May 1, 1901 to become the first batters in the American League to hit grandslams—and the Sox have not hit 2 grandslam homers in the same game since. Jim Callahan, later to become manager of the Sox, pitched the club's first no-hitter Sept. 20, 1902, beating Detroit 3-0. The first World Series was played in 1903, but the Chicago nine suffered through a couple of "down" years before making their first appearance in the Fall Classic in 1906, and that Series proved to be the one-and-only meeting in a World Series between the Chicago cross-town rivals in the history of baseball to date. The White Sox, setting the pattern that was to be their style for many decades to come, finished the 1906 season second in the American League in pitching, and dead last in hitting. The Cubs were heavy pre-Series favorites, but the "Hitless Wonders" of the Southside took the World Series 4 games to 2. The White Sox won the American League pennant again in 1917, and defeated the New York Giants in 6 games—and little did Sox fans know at the time that would be the last World Champion for the Southside, as least through the 1981 season.

A LONG DRY SPELL

Many famous personalities wore the White Sox flannels through their early years including "Big Ed" Walsh, Griffith, Ed Collins, Harry Hooper, Fielder Jones, "Doc" White, Lee Tannehill, Nixey Callahan, and many more. But their deeds were over-shadowed by the heartbreaking experience of the infamous "Black Sox" scandal, when several members of the Sox were found guilty of conspiring with gamblers to lose the 1919 World Series (although the scandal was not uncovered until the end of the 1920 season). Eight players were eventually expelled from baseball for life, and that scandal had a tremendous bearing on the club's fortunes for an extended period. It would not be until 1957 that a White Sox team would again finish as high as second place.

From 1957 through 1967, the White Sox again became a highly respectable team by establishing a .500 or better won-loss record every one of those seasons, through the '67 campaign. During that era, names like Nellie Fox, Louie Aparicio, Minnie Minoso, Billy Pierce, Sherm Lollar, Al Smith, Gary Peters, Joel Horlen, Jim Landis, Dick Donovan, "Jungle Jim" Rivera, Early

*All-time club record

DID YOU KNOW...

The longest consecutive game streak by a Chicago White Sox player is 798 games in a row, by Nelson Fox.

(A Short History, Cont.)
Wynn, Eddie Stanky, and Al "The Señor" Lopez grabbed Chicago's sports headlines. Lopez, whose teams finished second or better in 6 of his 9 years as a White Sox manager, brought joy back to Southside fans by giving them the club's 5th American League pennant in 1959, the first pennant for a White Sox team in 40 years (and last, to present day). It was a happy era for White Sox fans, despite the fact that the "Go-Go Sox" lost the World Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers in 6 games.

"THE SEÑOR" LEFT VOID

Following 1967 and the departure of "The Señor" from the Sox, there was a demise both on the field and at the gate. The low-water mark came in the dismal 1970 season when the White Sox recorded the worst won-loss record in baseball (56-106), and season attendance plunged to its worst since 1942 (496,355). But toward the end of that season, a pair of changes were made in the management of the club that were to signal the dawn of a new era of excitement on Chicago's Southside: Roland Hemond was hired as director of player personnel, and Chuck Tanner was hired as field manager. The team was very active in the off-season and the 1971 White Sox team that took the field on Opening Day was unrecognizable to the few fans who remembered what the 1970 team looked like. In addition to a raft of new faces, Tanner made two significant changes involving players already in place; he moved Bill Melton from right field to third base, and converted relief pitcher Wilbur Wood to a starting role. Melton went on to win the American League home run crown in '71 with 33 homers, the first modern Sox hitter to win a league home run title, and Wood went on to post 20 or more wins for 4 seasons (22, 24, 24, 20).

The pinnacle of Tanner's reign at the helm of the White Sox came in 1972, when the newly-acquired slugger Richie Allen led the Sox to 2nd place in the American League Western Division, the first time they had finished that high since the final year of Al Lopez' command (1965), and they broke a million in attendance (1,186,018) for the first time in 7 years as well. And what a year Allen had: not only did he belt 37 home runs to set a new White Sox record, but he led the American League in home runs, RBI (113), and in slugging percentage (.603) to be named the league's "Most Valuable Player." Tanner was named "Manager-of-the-Year" and Hemond "Major League Executive-of-the-Year" because of the rapid turn-around.

'70's NOT A GOOD DECADE

But alas, financial troubles once again plagued the ownership of the White Sox, and after the great promise of '72, the team once again began to fade. Money troubles reached such great proportions in 1975 that it appeared for a time the White Sox might be moved out of Chicago. The team, and its fans, were saved that fate late in 1975 when the irrepressible Bill Veeck rode into town at the 11th hour and put together a group to purchase the team and give Veeck the opportunity of a "second go-round" with the team he owned in 1959 and '60. Player salaries began their historic escalation in 1976, and Veeck turned to his now-famous "Rent-a-Free-Agent" scheme that gave Sox fans a flash of brilliance in 1977. That year, Hall-of-Fame pitcher Bob Lemon led the White Sox, stocked with one-year free agents such as Oscar Gamble, and Richie Zisk, to a 3rd place finish in the American League West. The slugging White Sox, the most potent Sox team since the teams of the early 70's, pounded-out 192 homers, led by Oscar Gamble's 31, Richie Zisk's 30 and Eric Soderholm's 25. Tissue-paper thin financing once again caught-up with the White Sox when the team was unable to retain many of the players that sparked them in '77, and Veeck ran out of mirrors with which to stock the team. The club went on the sale block in late 1980.

Veeck left White Sox fans with a legacy, however, in the persons of the new dynamic ownership of Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn, the knowledge and experience of Roland Hemond, and a young, but very talented manager in Tony La Russa. Only one being in this universe knows for certain what the future holds, but barring the unforeseen, the years ahead never looked brighter for the White Sox and their fans.

COMISKEY PARK—HOME OF RICH TRADITION

COMISKEY PARK contains the best of both worlds—the latest in "state of the art" entertainment and facilities, blended with the rich tradition of Baseball's bygone eras. Completed in 1910, the 73-year-old ball park, the oldest park in the major leagues today, has received major renovation the past two winters, including the installation of a full-color Diamond Vision/ Matrix scoreboard; new auxiliary scoreboards; construction of new expanded washroom facilities in both the upper and lower decks, construction of new dugouts, renovation of the home club house, and construction of 27 "Super Suites." Estimated cost of the recent improvements has been set at about $14,000,000, with $5,000,000 for construction of the Diamond Vision scoreboard the biggest single item.

The Diamond Vision scoreboard is certainly the most dramatic change in Comiskey Park in recent years. The scoreboard contains a unique combination of a full-color video display board along side a full matrix message board. Although there are several Diamond Vision boards in operation in the world today, the one at Comiskey Park remains the only scoreboard with the unique display of the Diamond Vision screen and the matrix board side by side, giving the imaginative operators the capability of playing the boards simultaneously. In addition, Diamond Vision offers not only full-color, instant replay and slow motion capabilities, but allows the White Sox to pick up and telecast to fans in the park live pictures from other ball games being played simultaneously in other parts of the country. Mitsubishi/ America and White Way Sign, manufacturers of the board, describe it as the most sophisticated system installed to date in the United States.

COMISKEY PICKS A SOUTHSIDE SITE

Comiskey Park today is certainly a long way from the vision Charles Comiskey had in his mind when he moved the St. Paul franchise of the Western League to Chicago in 1900 to form the Chicago franchise in the newly organized American League. Comiskey wanted a ballpark on 39th Street and Wentworth Avenue (Wentworth contained a major north-south streetcar line from Chicago's "Loop" to the far Southside). He leased land near that site which was owned by the Chicago Cricket Club. The White Stockings (as they were known originally) played there for 10 years, while Comiskey attempted to purchase the site. Finally giving up on that attempt, Comiskey purchased vacant land at 35th and Shields from the estate of Chicago's first mayor, John Wentworth, and appointed a committee to study plans for a new park. One member of the committee was Ed Walsh, the White Stockings' premier pitcher of the day, and Walsh's influence is said to be responsible for the park's generous outfield dimensions. The original dimensions were 362 feet down the foul lines and 420 feet to straight-away center field—a pitcher's park if ever there was one.

The park, originally named "White Sox Park," was constructed in great haste in early 1910, and opened its doors officially July 1, 1910, with a seating capacity of 35,000. Comiskey, aware of his working class following, was careful to include a generous mix of "cheap" seats at 25 cents. The Sox opened their new park July 1 by losing 2-0 to the St. Louis Browns, with Ed Walsh the losing pitcher, before a crowd that was estimated at 24,000 paid, 28,000 total, an exceptionally large crowd by that day's standards. The first home run hit in the new park was by the Sox' Lee Tannehill July 31, 1910, a grandslam against Detroit.

During its first decade of existence, Comiskey Park (as it had become known by 1913) was host to 3 consecutive World Series in 1917, '18 and '19. The Sox were in the 1917 and '19 Series, and the Cubs leased Mr. Comiskey's new edifice when they took part in the 1918 World Series.

GEHRIG, RUTH DICTATED CHANGES IN MID 1920'S

The first major changes took place in the mid-1920's when the popularity of the New York Yankees, led by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, always drew overflow crowds. After the 1926 season, the original wooden bleachers were torn down and replaced with a permanent steel and concrete structure, the outfield pavilions were double-decked, and the present bleacher structure was built. Original plans called for a seating capacity of 55,000 but fire codes held it to 52,000.

Doubledecking of the outfield pavilions created interest in how far a ball would have to travel to clear the roof, and a surveyor's team reckoned a drive would require a ground-to-ground distance of at least 474 feet to clear either the left or right field roof. It didn't take long for Gehrig and Ruth to make history in the new renovated park. Gehrig hit the first homer ever into the new pavilion in the expanded park in the very first Yankee series (May 7, 1927, a grandslam off Ted Lyons), and Ruth hit the first homer over the pavilion roof later that same season (August 16 off Tommy Thomas.) (Gehrig hit the second homer ever over the roof 2 years later off Red Faber, May 4, 1929.) The first home run into the new bleachers did not come for 11 years; Hank Greenberg hit it May 27, 1938.

In all, 20 home runs have been recorded that cleared the roof, and only 4 have ever been hit into the centerfield bleacher seats. (It is 440 feet to the front wall of the bleachers, and the wall is 18 feet high.)

COMISKEY PARK SITE OF FIRST ALL-STAR GAME

In 1933, all eyes were focused on Comiskey Park when it was the site of the first All-Star Game ever played. Staged as part of the Century of Progress Exposition that ran on Chicago's lake front all that summer, the All-Star Game was an instant success as an official crowd of 47,595 crowded into Mr. Comiskey's house (police estimates put the crowd in excess of 49,000). The American League won the first "Dream Game" 4-2. Subsequently, the All-Star Game returned to Comiskey Park July 11, 1950 (the Nationals won 4-3 in 14 innings). July 6, 1983—50 years to the date—the "Golden Anniversary All-Star Game" is scheduled to be played on the site of that very first game—Comiskey Park.

In 1934, the infield was moved out toward the outfield by 14 feet to provide Al Simmons with a better shot at the fences. Later inside fences in the left and right fields were tried in 1949 and again in 1969 and '70, but abandoned. A fence in center field reducing that distance from 440 to 400 feet was erected in 1949, taken down in 1976, and re-installed for the 1981 season. To their credit Bill Melton (1971) and Dick Allen (1972) won their American League home run crowns with the park's basic 1927 dimensions. The late Sherm Lollar holds the record for most career home runs in Comiskey Park (66 in his 18-year career).

The first night game was played at Comiskey Park August 14, 1939, and the foe was the same one that helped open the structure 29 years earlier, the St. Louis Browns. The center section of the bleachers was blocked-out in 1947 to provide a better background for hitters, and the first electric scoreboard was installed in 1951. The now-famous "Exploding Scoreboard" was installed by Bill Veeck to open the 1960 season.

SOX NOT AFRAID TO EXPERIMENT

It can never be said the White Sox were afraid to experiment. Over the winter of 1967-'68, an artificial infield was installed at Comiskey Park that included all the foul territory from behind third base to behind first base. The outfield remained natural sod. The experiment came to an end following the 1975 season when the artificial surface was removed and the infield and foul territory returned to natural turf.

Over the past winter, the infield was moved out eight feet and all dimensions remeasured (it was discovered that some of the existing dimension figures painted on the outfield walls were inaccurate), to make the outfield lines and power alleys uniform in distances from homeplate.

In spite of all the changes, Comiskey Park, as it stands today, is essentially in its 1927 state. Many millions of dollars have been spent over the years to maintain and improve it, but it is still exclusively a park built in which to watch a baseball game, and continues to be as much fun to visit for itself as to watch the White Sox do battle with American League opponents.

DON DRYSDALE

Don Drysdale is in his 2nd season as one of the voices of the White Sox. The former Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodger pitcher also remains a member of the ABC Network baseball broadcasting team, which he first joined in 1977. Prior to joining the Sox, Drysdale broadcast California Angels games for several seasons. He began his broadcast career in 1970 with Montreal after a stellar major league career in which he was a 9-time National League All-Star and took part in 5 World Series. He compiled a 209-167 record with a 2.95 ERA in 14 major league seasons.

The "Hawk," Ken Harrelson, is also in his 2nd year as a White Sox broadcaster. He came to Chicago last season after 7 years of broadcasting Boston Red Sox games where he delighted fans with his candid and sometime pointed analysis. Harrelson helped lead the Red Sox to the American League pennant in 1967 and became something of a legend in Boston when he hit 35 home runs and drove-in 109 runs in 1968. The Red Sox traded him to Cleveland in 1969, causing such a furor that Red Sox fans picketed Fenway Park.

KEN HARRELSON

JOE McCONNELL

The dean of White Sox broadcasters, Joe McConnell is in his 4th season at the Sox microphone. If his voice seems familiar, it's probably because Joe is also the voice of the Chicago Bears, for whom he has been describing the action since 1977. A versatile broadcaster, McConnell's credits include the Minnesota Vikings and the Denver Broncos of the NFL, the Minnesota Twins, and the Phoenix Suns and Indiana Pacers of the NBA. An Indiana native, Joe has been heard on live coverage of the famed Indianapolis 500 motor race and other auto races.

Hall of Fame pitcher Early Wynn returns for his second season in the White Sox broadcast booth. "Gus" was a member of the last White Sox team to win an American League pennant (1959). In helping lead the Sox to the pennant that year, Wynn posted a 22-10 record to win the "Cy Young Award" as the best pitcher in the league, the only Sox pitcher ever to win the honor since its inception. Early pitched in 4 decades (1930's, '40s, '50s, and '60s), posting his 300th victory in 1963 with Cleveland at the age of 43. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1972.

For those holding credentials allowing admission to the Bards' Room, it is normally open two hours prior to game time. It is closed during games, but opens immediately after games for approximately 1-1/2 hours.

PRESS BOX:
For those holding credentials allowing admission to the Press Box, it is located on the 5th level. Seating is limited, and most seats are assigned on a season basis and limited strictly to those members of the media who are working. Visiting members of the media who are not working will be asked to leave the Press Box and sit in the park.

PRE-GAME NOTES:
Game notes and statistics sheets are normally available in the Press Box one hour prior to game time. Anyone needing notes or statistics sheets early for a specific reason should contact the Public Relations Office.

POST-GAME NOTES:
Post-game notes, quotes, and statistics are distributed in the Press box approximately 15 minutes after the end of each game.

BROADCAST BOOTHS:
Broadcast booths at Comiskey Park are pre-assigned. If there is a need for a broadcast booth, inquiries should be directed to Laureen Ong Fadil, White Sox Vice President of Broadcasting, in writing, on station letterhead.

INTERVIEWS:
Players and staff are normally available on the field during batting practice and in the club house post-game, for accredited media members holding credentials issued by the Sox. For special arrangements for print or audio interviews, arrangements should be made through the Public Relations Department.

AUDIO REPORT:
A daily audio service for members of the media is available beginning with spring training through the end of the season. New reports featuring a report on that day's game, and an interview with a key player, manager or coach, are available within an hour after the end of that day's game. Reports are changed every 24 hours. The White Sox ask that the audio line telephone number be kept as confidential as possible to prevent congestion. The numbers are: (312) 924-3995 or 3996.
